IKE DISAPPOINTED WITH CONGRESS

Hoffa Denies He Had Dealings With Mobster

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Senate Rackets Committee said today two of James R. Hoffa's Teamster Union locals paid $150,000 for the country estate of Capone mobster Paul (the Waiter) Ricca.

Hoffa, accused of being an ally of the New York underworld, told the committee he never met the Chicago hoodlum and could find no trace of his name in the deal for the mansion.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said one of the union checks for the property bore the endorsement of Paul De Lucia. He said this is another name for Ricca.

"I say we did not purchase from Paul Ricca," Hoffa snapped.

The fast-talking Hoffa, probably next president of the Teamsters Union and presently its Midwest boss, said the estate near Chicago was bought by the union as a school in which to teach union officials how to handle welfare and pension funds. Hoffa said the estate was bought by Local 337 and his home Local 299, in Detroit, and turned over to the union's Joint Council 43.

He said after the purchase was first publicized, he had the abstract company check the records and could not find Ricca's name. He said he did not know Ricca and De Lucia were the same—or why someone named De Lucia got the union's check. He said the property was purchased from a trust company.

Second Day

This was Hoffa's second day on the witness stand. The committee went over his personal finances Tuesday and brought out that he had borrowed about $120,000 from his Local 299 in Detroit, other Teamster officials and businessmen having dealings with the local. Most of the loans were obtained without paying interest, signing notes or putting up collateral. He still owes "around about $70,000" of this, he said.

In 15 days of public hearings the committee built up a painstakingly detailed charge that Hoffa, Midwest leader of the union, had Teamster headquarters set up seven phony, memberless locals in the Teamsters Union which voted for his candidate, John O'Rourke, for president of potent Joint Council 16 last year in New York. O'Rourke won tht election, lost a court challenge, but took over unopposed this year.

The group Tuesday fenced with Hoffa over his personal finances, bringing out that:

—Mrs. Hoffa and the wife of one of his union associates, Bert Brennan, turned up as owners of a series of firms which rent trucks to companies which haul autos from factory to dealer. One of Mrs. Hoffa's companies, Test Fleet, which has the high-profit task of hauling Cadillacs, made a profit of $125,000 in seven years from a firm which previously had labor trouble with the Teamsters.

—Hoffa borrowed $25,000 from Harold Mark, an auditor and real estate man who in turn borrowed $25,000 from Hoffa's Local 299 and another $62,500 from Local 337. Hoffa said Mark has repaid the

Youth Hurt in Accident; Car Slams into Wall

A 15-year-old Monessen youth, Robert Dickinson, of 1015 Second St., driving his step-father's car without permission, lost control of the car while traveling north on Hillcrest Ave. last night and rammed into a retaining wall at 1209 Hillcrest Ave., Chief of Police Michael Kuvinka reported today.

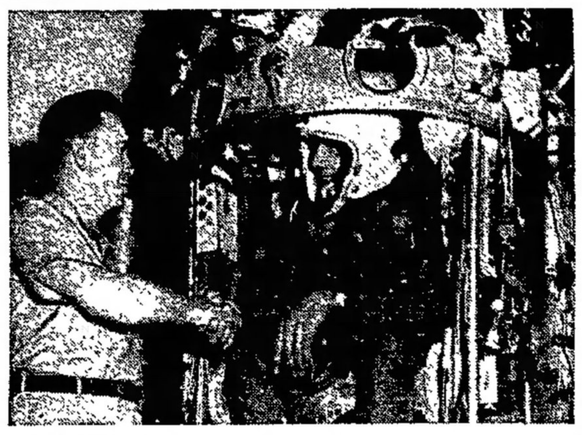
Besides damaging the wall on the property of Joseph Fitman, the car also ripped up shrubbery.

Kuvinka said the boy fled from the scene of the accident but was later found at the home of a relative.

The youth is in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today suffering from bruises about the face. It has not been determined whether he received the injuries in the accident or if he fell while fleeing. He is also scheduled for x-rays.

Upon his discharge from the hospital, he will be held for operating a motor vehicle without a license.

He is the step-son of Harry O'Hota, also of 1015 Second St.



SPENDS NIGHT NEAR OUTER SPACE—Just before taking off from an open pit iron mine in Minnesota on an unofficial world record balloon flight, Air Force Maj. David G. Simons (seated in the pressurized cabin of his balloon) is wished good luck by Air Force Capt. Joe Kittinger, holder of the previous manned balloon altitude record. On his overnight flight, Maj. Simmons reached an estimated altitude of 100,000 feet (about 19 miles). Old record was 96,000 feet.

Spaceman Talks of Seeing Purple Sky

FREDERICK, S. D. (UP) — The world's first bona fide spaceman, who spent 32 hours exploring the vast reaches along the rim of the stratosphere, emerged from his record-smashing flight dead tired but thrilled with the wonders of the heavens.

Maj. David G. Simmons, 35, a lanky Air Force physician, brought his huge balloon safely to earth near Elm Lake in northern South Dakota at 6:28 p.m., e.d.t., Tuesday. He had attained an altitude of at least 19 miles during his unprecedented trip.

The space pioneer brought back a tale of being surrounded by a purple sky, even in the daytime, and of observing the stars glowing "like an animal's eyes."

Space Travel Link

But of even greater importance, Simons proved that man can live for extended periods beyond the shackles of the earth's atmosphere. His ordeal was a major link in experimentation that may some day lead the way to space travel.

Two farm youths were the first to greet the spaceman when he stepped uncertainly but unhurt from the small, aluminum gondola in which he had been sealed since Sunday night.

Simons, a native of Lancaster, Pa., smiled at them and asked: "Hello, how are you? Where am I?"

A short time later, several Air Force planes and helicopters and private planes also landed in the flax field on the Fred Schense farm near here.

Ordered To Bed

Simons was whisked in a helicopter, accompanied by Otto Winzen, head of the firm that built the balloon, to Fargo, N.D. There he freshened up and telephoned the exciting news to his wife in Alamogordo, N.M., where Simons is stationed with the Aeromedicine Research Center.

He later was flown to Minneapolis and went straight to bed for 24 hours of sleep prescribed by Col. John Stapp, chief of the Aeromedicine Center and director of Project Man-High. The Air Force said Simons will hold a news conference tonight.

Speaking briefly with newsmen after his landing Tuesday, Simons said his greatest thrill was "get-

No 'Twinkle' to Stars Anymore

FREDERICK, S. D. (UP) — "Twinkle, twinkle, little star" isn't for space kids.

Take it from Maj. David G. Simons, the Air Force physician who rode a balloon high enough to take a look.

After his descent here Tuesday, he remarked that at that altitude he reached — up to 102,000 feet — the stars show as steady beacons and don't twinkle.

"Do we have to revise our nursery rhymes?" asked a reporter.

"Yes," replied the matter-of-fact major, "for people who live at that altitude."

Steel Union Official Wants Just His Share

WASHINGTON (UP)—A steel union official said today his organization "has never believed that labor should reap all of the fruits of increased productivity."

"We only want to share in them," he said.

Otis Brubaker, director of research for the United Steelworkers of America, made the statement as he resumed testimony before the Senate anti - trust and monopoly subcommittee. The subcommittee is investigating the recent increase in steel prices.

Brubaker told the congressional group Tuesday that steel makers were making wage increases the "scapegoat" to explain what he called an exorbitant price increase of $6 a ton.

"In making this price increase, the industry's price administrators, as usual, completely ignored the sharp productivity growth," he said.

Expanding on this point this morning, Brubaker said the unions "have never claimed increased productivity is due solely to the expenditure of human labor."

"We recognize that industry's improvements in equipment, techniques and plant facilities are just as important in increasing productivity," he said. "But this is a team effort and the sharing should be likewise."

Charleroi Fraud Is Charged

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UP)— A Washington County grand jury today ordered a Charleroi businessman brought to trial on indictments charging fraudulent conversion, forgery, and embezzlement of funds totaling approximately $25,000.

The defendant named in eight indictments returned here Tuesday is William Glick, vice president of Crown Sales Co. and a former sales agent of Crown Construction Co., both Charleroi firms.

Grand jury action on the charges, which had been pending for some months, had been delayed because Glick has been a patient at a Veterans Administration hospital near Aspinwall, Pa. Arraignment of Glick on the charges was set for Aug. 27 with the case scheduled tentatively for trial during the week of Sept. 3.

Partner Indicted

Simon Felser, president of Crown Sales and a partner in the contracting firm, also was indicted with Glick on several charges involving larceny by bailee, fraudulent conversion, and false pretense. But Felser, who in effect is one of the accusers of Glick, was named only in allegations resulting from customer complaints and was not directly involved in the string of corporate charges filed against his former associate by the Crown firms.

Authorities indicated additional charges against Glick had been under consideration. The exact amount of funds allegedly mishandled by Glick was not known but was estimated at well above the amounts mentioned in the indictments.

Both Glick and Felser were indicted on fraudulent conversion charges in August, 1956, on complaints brought by customers. Crown Sales dealt in household appliances and similar items.

One of the charges against Glick involved a series of checks issued by the Monessen office of a finance company for a total of $61,000 of which Crown Sales allegedly received amounts totaling only $47,000.

The forgery indictments involved two checks, for $159 and $1,000, which Felser claimed were payable to Crown Contracting but which were endorsed and cashed by Glick. Another charge alleged that Glick improperly received funds totaling $5,000 paid to the contracting firm.

Car Runs Into Parked Autos

A car operated by Howard Livengood, of 401 McKean Ave., Charleroi, crashed into two parked cars on a Charleroi street about 2:25 this morning, it was reported.

Charleroi police said Livengood was traveling north on McKean Ave. near Second St. when he collided with cars owned by W. S. Wichlenski, of Warrington, Fla., and Bennie Wisneski, of 113 McKean Ave., Charleroi.

All three cars were badly damaged.

Livengood, who suffered a laceration of the lip, told police he fell asleep. He also said he had no insurance.

Loses Control of Car; Smacks Wall

Joseph Rullo, of 492 McKee Ave., Monessen, told police that he lost control of the car he was driving on City Park Rd. yesterday afternoon and crashed into a retaining wall on Willow Dr.

Rullo said he dropped a burning cigarette in the car and lost control of the vehicle when he tried to locate it.

The entire front of the car was damaged.

Connellsville Man's Body Found in River

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa. (UP)— A body identified through three raffle tickets as that of Alexander Long, Connellsville, was removed from the Youghiogheny River here Tuesday.

Police said the raffle tickets were sold by a Greensburg fire company. They checked the tickets with the stubs held by firemen.

Long was a resident of a Connellsville hotel.

Tanker Loses Race; Sinks Off Gibraltar Coast

GIBRALTAR (UP)—The explosion ravaged tanker World Splendor lost a dramatic race against time today and sank within sight of safety off Gibraltar.

Nine officers who remained on the smoking hulk and a British Admiralty tug had battled to get the 25,000-ton ship into Gibraltar before seas flooded its forward hull.

But flooding through cracks opened by the two explosions and flash fire which hit the ship Tuesday poured in before the tug Confident could cover the last 20 to 30 miles to the British naval base.

The Confident took off the nine officers who had stayed aboard fighting the fire, slipped its towline and headed away from the sinking hulk.

In London, headquarters of the Niarchos tanker fleet reported, "We believe all hands are accounted for okay." The ship carried a normal crew of 81 men.

The cause of the explosions has not yet been determined.

Takes Cautious Stand on Soviet Action in Syria

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today he is tremendously disappointed in the record to date of this session of Congress.

At his weekly news conference, Eisenhower also took a cautious stand on the Communist seizure of power in Syria. He said the situation does not at present justify any action under the Eisenhower Middle East Doctrine.

He charged that Russia is trying to take over Syria.

On domestic matters, Eisenhower indicated a willingness to accept a compromise version of the jury trial amendment to the civil rights bill somewhere between the Senate version, which he still opposes and his original position. The compromise proposal will be announced later today or Thursday by House Republican leaders.

The President also told reporters he earnestly hopes that congressional leaders of both parties will get together and finish action on the civil rights bill at this session of Congress rather than letting it go into an election year. He did not think it would be proper to have the emotions of the people torn over such an issue next year during congressional and state elections.

Foreign Aid Hope

Other highlights of Eisenhower's meeting with reporters:

—He expressed again his hope that the Senate would restore every cent of the reduced foreign aid appropriation to the level of the original authorization bill, then make the best possible deal out of a House-Senate conference.

—He said the 41 American students who have gone to Red China from the youth meeting in Moscow were badly advised and are doing a disservice to their country.

—He said he sees no usefulness in contemplating a special session of Congress on civil rights. He reiterated that the world situation would have to dictate the necessity of a special session on foreign aid should Congress end up voting what he regards as insufficient funds.

—Eisenhower said he plans to remain in Washington as long as Congress is in session, but that if the House and Senate wind up their affairs in about the next 10 days or so and if Mrs. Eisenhower's medical condition permits, he still hopes to take a holiday at Newport, R I. He added, however, that his vacation plans become more indefinite each day.

Eisenhower was asked to appraise the congressional treatment of the administration program this year and to evaluate the job done by Congress. The President said that he had looked over the long list of recommendations he submitted to Congress last January and was tremendously disappointed that to date so many bills had not been acted on and in some cases not even accorded committee hearings.

He declined to divide the blame between the Democrats and Republicans. He said those who voted against his program which he believed was best for the welfare of the nation had to share the blame.

Husband Shoots Wife to Death in Homestead Office

HOMESTEAD, Pa. (UP)— A Homestead mother was shot and killed by her estranged husband Tuesday night minutes after she told friends she feared for her life.

Robert Puskar, 32, emptied a .38 caliber Belgium automatic at his wife, Agnes, 28, as she stood before a triple mirror in a downtown loan office.

The first shot missed but four bullets found their mark in the chest and a fifth in the arm. Mrs. Puskar was pronounced dead on arrival at Homestead Hospital.

"I still love her," Puskar sobbed as he confessed the slaying to Henry Pieper, chief of Allegheny County detective, "but we couldn't get along."

The shooting occurred about 6:45 p.m., in the loan office of Jake Doniger in the heart of the Homestead business district.

Feared for Life

Mrs. Puskar, who separated from her husband two months ago and took custody of their daughters, June, 8, and Nancy, 6, had stopped at a paint store and told Mrs. William Hook she feared for her life.

She then went next door to the Doniger loan office to show Mrs. Doniger pictures she had taken on a recent trip to California.

Puskar caught up to his wife there and asked to speak with her.

"Maybe they'll make up now," Mrs. Doniger remembered telling her husband. But then Mrs. Puskar made a move to leave and the husband, angered, grabbed her elbow and pulled out the revolver.

Breaks Window In Local Store To 'Fight Fire'

"First, I thought there was an explosion. No, there was a fire."

These were the comments made by C. H. Borland, 40, of Ellsworth Ave., Pittsburgh, after he was arrested for breaking a large plate glass window at the Singer Sewing Machine Co. store at 448 Donner Ave. about 2:30 this morning.

Borland, who is being held in the local jail on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge, told police — somewhat incoherently, according to Chief Michael Kuvinka. — that he thought he saw a fire in the store and broke the window in order to get into the store and "fight the fire."

The "fire" was a reflection from a nearby red neon sign.

Judge Claims Deceit In Charleroi Case

Judge David H. Weiner, of Washington County common pleas court, charged today that a Charleroi attorney, the attorney's client and a witness in a civil suit had conspired in "a well - planned scheme to deceive the court."

The charges were levelled against John E. Costello, the attorney; Alfred Nesti, the client, and Glenn E. Porter, an official of Porter Finance Co., of Charleroi, a small loan firm.

Costello emphatically denied any wrong-doing.

"I am absolutely sick about the whole thing," the well known attorney said. "All I did was represent my client. I did nothing wrong."

The case arose in 1950 when the Rev. Gregory Paonessa, a Roman Catholic priest formerly of Monessen, sued Nesti, his nephew.

Father Paonessa, now 84 and partially blind, claimed that Nesti had invested $5,000 of the priest's personal funds in the Porter company and had withdrawn the investment without rendering an accounting or returning the money.

Costello represented Nesti in defending the action. Porter was a witness when the suit was tried.

Judge Weiner, in an opinion upholding Father Paonessa's claim, said the defense, with Porter's aid, lied to the court about the date on which the $5,000 was invested in the Porter company.

"The facts definitely show that these three had a well-planned scheme in order to mislead the court," Judge Weiner told The Independent.

The jurist said the facts show that Father Paonessa, whose last pastorate was at Mother of Sorrows R. C. Church in Charleroi, had "entrusted at least $17,000" to Nesti.

According to testimony in the case, the funds were placed in a safe-deposit box in a Charleroi bank. Nesti, his wife, Josephine,

Steel Walkout In Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UP)—An unauthorized walkout by about 800 workers at the Brier Hill Works of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company ended Tuesday night.

The workers walked off their jobs at about noon to protest the company's policy on layoffs and its assignment of available work.

It was reported the work stoppage began after 50 men were laid off while supervisory employes were assigned to operating cranes.

Representatives of the company and Local 1462, United Steelworkers, will meet with a neutral umpire to attempt to settle the workers' grievances.

Pro-Russians Show Big Gains In Syria; More Officers Purged

By UNITED PRESS

Pro-Soviet elements in Syria have purged another group of army officers and replaced them with active Communists to consolidate further their bloodless revolution, Israeli dispatches reported today.

Reports also reached Jerusalem, Israel and Beirut, Lebanon, that Syrian President Shukri El Kuwatly had resigned. But Damascus Radio and the Cairo press insisted he would return home in a few days from an Egyptian hospital.

The Syrian-American crisis was heightened Tuesday night when Syria renewed its charges of an "American "plot" to overthrow the government and said "made in America gangsters" were to have assassinated Syria's leaders.

Moscow Radio increased its anti-American broadcasts to the Middle East and accused America of "unprecedented interference . . . in the internal affairs of Near and Middle Eastern countries."

Reports reached Jerusalem, Israel, from Damascus that the leftist military clique in Syria arrested five brigade commanders and Brig. Omar Kabani, former deputy chief of staff and recent military attache to Jordan.

The reports said the arrest of Kabani occasioned surprise throughout Syria and showed the thoroughness of the Communist coup. He was among the signers of the arms accord with the Soviet Union.

Maj. Gen. Afif Bizri army chief of staff, told a news conference in Damascus Tuesday night the United States planned to send "made in America gangsters" to assassinate him and other top officers.

There were reports Syria might take the alleged American "plot" to the U N. Security Council, but U.N. officials said no complaint had been filed with Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold. Bizri did not mention it.

Acting Syrian President Nazem Kudsi told the United Press in Damascus he had received a cable from Kuwatly's secretary saying they would return as soon as the results of a medical examination are available. Beirut press reports said erroneously Kudsi had fled to Lebanon.

The takeover in Syria was still raising doubts and fears in other nations.

Jerusalem sources said Israel was anxiously awaiting any United States efforts to counteract the Claims Girard Trial to Decide Fate of Forces

TOKYO, Japan (UP) — An American soldier-diplomat said today the Japanese trial of Specialist 3rd Class William S. Girard may determine whether the United States will continue to station ground forces in foreign countries.

Col. Alvin M. Owsley, of Dallas, said most Americans believe the Supreme Court "went too far" when it consented to permit a Japanese court to try Girard for an offense committed while on duty.

The 68-year-old Texan, who is an attorney in private life, questioned the constitutionality of the "administrative agreements" that enable foreign courts to try U.S. soldiers.

Former U.S. Minister

Owsley, a former commander of the American Legion, will sit in at the Girard trial at the request of the Legion's present chief, W. C. Daniel.

In addition to his military career, Owsley is a former U.S. minister to Romania, Ireland and Denmark.

He noted that the manslaughter trial of the young American soldier by a Japanese court made up entirely of judges would deprive him of his constitutional right of trial by jury. He added that a great deal may depend on the verdict.

"There are responsible authorities in America who advocate the withdrawal of all (U.S.) ground troops from foreign countries throughout the world," Owsley said.

"They are saying that 'we need only the Air Force and Navy and a token ground force stationed abroad to curb the Communist menace."

"The outcome of this so-called Girard case may determine whether U.S. ground forces are removed from this and other countries of the world."

Killed Japanese Woman

Girard, while on duty as a guard at a U.S. firing range, accidentally killed a Japanese woman who was scavenging scrap brass from the range. An emply cartridge case fired from his grenade launcher as a warning struck the woman in the back.

Japanese authorities waived jurisdiction today in a generally similar case, involving a U. S flier whose light plane hit and killed a Japanese woman bicyclist.

The Mito district attorney's office said it is up to U.S. authorities to determine whether Lt. John L. Gordon, of Erie, Pa , was guilty of negligence.

A 5th Air Force spokesman would say only that "the case is being reviewed."

Gordon was taking off when his plane suddenly lost altitude, either because he retracted the flaps too soon or because they were defective. The tail whel dragged along the ground for several feet, hitting the bicycle and killing the Japanese woman.

an orphan who had been reared by Father Paonessa, and the priest himself had access to the box.

Father Paonessa testified that he had requested Nesti to invest $5,000 of his money in the Porter company. Bank records showed Nesti withdrew $5,000 from his own account on March 28, 1950. It was alleged that this actually was Father Paonessa's money, even though the transaction was made in the names of Mr. and Mrs. Nesti.

Judge Weiner said Nesti and Porter had testified, however, that the $5,000 was turned over to Porter before Feb. 13, 1950 and not on or after Nesti's withdrawal in March.

Father Paonessa claimed that Nesti returned to him only $10,020 of the original $17,000 on May 24, 1954. This consisted of bonds and other securities, but the Porter investment was not included, according to the suit.

The priest instituted the suit to recover the money.

Judge Weiner decided the case in Father Paonessa's favor, and Costello said today that Nesti would accept the judgment without filing exceptions.

The jurist's charges against Costello, Nesti and Porter hinge mainly on the conflict in dates.

On this point, Costello told The Independent today:

"This thing happened over seven years ago. I handle all kinds of money for my clients. A person isn't expected to remember exact dates after seven years."

Judge Weiner did not indicate what action, if any, he plans to take against the alleged conspirators.

He emphatically denied, however, a report published in a Pittsburgh newspaper that he plans disbarment proceedings against Costello.

"I was definitely misquoted on that," Judge Weiner said.

Soviet coup but speculated any action would come from Turkey which now has Communist or Communist - influenced nations on three sides.

An Istanbul dispatch said Turkish officials believed a leftist takeover in Syria would dangerously threaten Turkey. Reports of Russian plans to establish a submarine and naval base in the Mediterranean brought further anxiety.

Israel was increasingly concerned about the new threat to its border with Syria. Political sources said Abba Eban, Israeli ambassador to Washington, was conferring today with Premier David Ben-Gurion after talks Tuesday with Foreign Minister Golda Meir.

Some political sources in Jerusalem believed the completeness of the Syrian coup might even drive Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser into the Western camp. He has never seriously quarreled with the United States and was reported sending out feelers to France and Britain toward restoring relations.

Anti-Red Sentiment

NEGRO FAMILY TESTS BARRIER—State Police were called in to stand guard around the first Negro residents of Levittown, Pa., and were forced to use riot sticks to scatter a surly, stone-throwing crowd of some 400 persons. A search was started for one man who reportedly threatened to blow up the Negroes' home in the previously all-white, 15,500-house development. William Myers, Jr. told newsmen, ". . . we will try to be good neighbors . . . unless something absolutely unforeseen happens, we are here to stay."

Levittown Policeman Is Struck by Stone

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (UP)—For the second night in a row, club-wielding police Tuesday dispersed a jeering crowd of 300 persons gathered in protest in front of the home of the first Negro family to move into this post-war community.

State and township police charged and dispersed the demonstrators after a thrown rock knocked a police sergeant unconscious

The officer, Thomas Stewart, 30, was admitted to a Philadelphia hospital for observation. He suffered an ear laceration and a possible concussion.

A 15-year-old boy believed to have thrown the rock was seized and taken to police headquarters, but later released in the custody of his parents.

Eighth Protest Night

It marked the eighth straight night that demonstrators, many of them teen-agers, had assembled to protest the resident of Negro William Myers Jr., who moved into the $12,500 house Aug. 13, along with his wife and their three children. The family left the house after the first demonstration, when two windows were broken, and spent a week at his father's home in York, Pa. But they returned on Monday.

Despite a police guard around the ranch-type house, crowds of demonstrators have gathered each night.

Booing and shouting, last night's crowd defied police and moved to within 100 yards of the house At first, officers used their bare hands in trying to restrain the mob. Then the rock was thrown, striking Sgt. Stewart above the right ear.

As he fell unconscious, police, waving their nightsticks, charged the crowd. Within seconds, all of the demonstrators had dispersed.

It was the second straight night that the protest gatherings had led to personal injury. Three persons had been injured, none seriously, Monday when club-swinging troopers dispersed the anti-Negro demonstrators.

Two men were arrested on disorderly conduct charges in connection with Tuesday night's disturbance. William Duff, 18, and Clayton Gould, 37, were fined $10 and costs.

Meanwhile, the 34-year-old Myers said many groups of white persons had come forward with offers to help. And the top area official of the United Steelworkers called on members of the union living in Levittown to help stop the demonstrations.

Myers, a $5,000-a-year refrigeration firm employe in Trenton, N.J., has said he plans to continue living in the house in this community of 15,500 houses which was set up after World War II.

Chamber banquets are among the best known civic events in Western Pennsylvania, attracting visitors from throughout the area.

Speakers in recent years have included Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Ambassador of the Philippines to the United States, and Kenneth McFarland, public relations consultant of General Motors, who appeared twice.

The history of the annual banquet goes back about 30 years. The series was interrupted during World War II but was resumed four years ago. Traditionally, the speaker has been a figure of national prominence.

Skirpan said committees will be appointed soon to complete the arrangements.

Wanna Buy Railroad Station? New York Central Puts Up 406

NEW YORK (UP)—Anybody wanna buy a railroad station?

The New York Central Railroad has put 406 of its stations on the auction block and will entertain any reasonable offer.

The road said it already has sold seven of the stations and negotiations looking toward the sale of a number of others now are underway.

One of the stations already sold —located at South Chicago — will be converted into a supermarket.

The railroad said the stations can be used for libraries, club houses, stores, community centers, auditoriums, skating rinks, bowling alleys and youth centers.

The stations up for sale are located all over the Central's 11,000 mile system. They range in size from small structures heated by pot-bellied stoves to huge, marbled-columned affairs capable of seating hundreds.

Stations Lose Money

Why is the Central selling part of what has been described as its "gold mine in real estate?"

The principal reason is that the road has been losing money on these stations. This loss has been a major factor in the road's annual deficit from passenger operations, which amounted to almost 50 million dollars last year.

Alfred E. Perlman, president of the nation's second biggest rail system, toldt he United Press that whatever profit the Central might realize from carrying a passenger "is completely wiped out by the terminal he merely walks through to catch the train."

Perlman said what a passenger pays for his ticket "stays within the terminal to pay for its gigantic costs of operation, maintenance and taxes. In buying his ticket, he pays most for the facility he uses least."

Key to these high costs "is the generally huge tax load placed on railway passenger facilities," Perlman explained.

He pointed out that many stations were built during the railroad's monopoly era "and reflect a grandeur far beyond today's worth — and their operation and maintenance costs show it."

In analyzing the cost picture, Perlman said railroads must build, maintain and pay taxes on their stations, while their competitors — airlines and bus companies — use tax-free terminals built with public funds.

The Central figured it loses almost $1,500 a month just on its station at Malone, N.Y., 167 miles north of Utica, just short of the Canadian border. It said this was typical of its small stations.

The Central said it loses more than $1,200,000 a year on its big Union Terminal in Cleveland, which is one of those up for sale or lease.

Grand Central Station, in the heart of New York, is not on the list.

ting back to earth." He said the "capsule (gondola) operated perfectly" during the marathon flight.

The gondola was undamaged in the landing, and the Air Force and Winzen Research Co. began an immediate study of the comprehensive reports recorded on instruments in the capsule.

An Air Force spokesman termed the flight "most successful." He said much significant data was obtained, but it will take some time to analyze the information.

Workers Blast Boston Strike; Want to Work

BOSTON (UP)—The Boston Globe Employes Association today sent a resolution to the Globe publisher and all newspaper unions idled by the 13-day strike demanding that they be permitted to work.

The association, an independent union representing about 500 editorial, business and maintenance employes of the Globe, met Tuesday night and condemned the Mailers' Union walkout as "without merit."

The Globe workers said, "we want to work—not next month or next week, or even tomorrow—but now. The right to work has been taken from us—we believe without justification."

The strike of 300 mailers for higher wages nearly two weeks ago put 5,000 other employes of the Morning and Evening Globe, the Herald - Traveler and the Record - American - Advertiser out of work. They were suspended by the publishers.

Four negotiations meetings between union officials and newspaper representatives have failed. A final $10,50 package weekly wage increase was turned down by the union last Saturday. They are demanding a $16 weekly pay boost.

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UP)— A Soviet trade delegation, headed by foreign trade chief Nikolai Yejov, began a one-week visit in this NATO country today.

Disarmament Listed as Top Church Objective

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP)—A Lutheran theologian today listed disarmament, protection of human rights and religious liberty as among the major Christian objectives in international affairs.

Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, Philadelphia, Pa., said other objectives are reconciliation of nations and extension of economic and technical aid.

Dr. Nolde, dean of the graduate school of Lutheran Theological Seminary and director of the commission on international affairs of the World Council of Churches, spoke at the third assembly of the Lutheran World Federation.

He said in the process of bringing nations together, there can be "no compromise between atheistic material aims and the Christian faith, nor can Christians rest content so long as totalitarian practices seek to enslave men in body and soul."

Dr. Nolde called for unwavering efforts to "relieve mankind of the burden and threat of the armaments race." He suggested the delegates consider a statement on atomic tests and disarmament recently adopted by the central committee of the World Council of Churches.

The statement urged a halt to testing and production of nuclear weapons and the speeding up of international cooperation in development of the atom for peaceful purposes.

Referring to a suggestion for a trial period in which nuclear tests would stop, Dr. Nolde said such a decision by any government would "obviously involve a risk."

"But it could give birth to new confidence and provide the stimulus for developing the reliable agreements which are indispensable for adequate disarmament," he added.

Foreign Aid Pleas Are Made by Republicans

Experts Testify Need to Restore House Slashes

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration today made a new attempt to convince skeptical senators that deep cuts in the foreign aid program are dangerous.

The government sent a parade of experts to testify before the Senate Appropriations Committee on the need of restoring the 800 million dollars the House cut from the foreign aid money bill.

The senators challenged the administration to come up with facts and figures to prove its case. They wanted to know the total amount of money the aid program now has in unspent appropriations, available foreign currencies and items in its long-range pipeline.

Some senators contended the amount is about 9 billion dollars. Other estimates were less.

Action Postponed

The committee postponed action on the bill to get the answers to its questions. The move clearly indicated many senators felt the administration's case as presented so far was not strong enough to warrant restoration.

Other congressional news:

Rights: The House stalemate over civil rights bill appeared to have become a case of etiquette. House GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. said it was up to the Democrats to approach the Republicans if they want a bill the President will sign. But Democratic leaders said it is up to the GOP to make the next move.

Money: Senate - House conferees agreed on most provisions of a $1,700,000,000 supplemental money bill mostly for military public works projects. The bill includes $800,000 to fight Asiatic flu and 4 million dollars to fight fire ants and screw worms in cattle. Conferees disagreed on whether to provide $12,500,000 for a new capital airport at nearby Burke, Va.

Balloon Leak Delays Test of Atomic Device

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—A balloon designed to carry a nuclear device has sprung a leak, forcing the Atomic Energy Commission to call the third postponement of its 13th shot in the summer test series.

The device, dubbed Doppler, was to be detonated from the helium-filled balloon today 1,500 feet above the Nevada Proving grounds. Scientists disclosed Tuesday that the leak resulted in the loss of nearly all of the lighter-than-air gas pumped into the plastic balloon

The AEC said a new shipment of helium would arrive today and the test would be held at 5:30 a.m. p.d.t. Thursday—weather permitting. Adverse weather already has caused two 24-hour delays in the detonation of the "half nominal" yield device.

Coal Freight Rates Studied by the PUC

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission has taken under advisement a complaint by Clearfield district bituminous mines that they are at a competitive disadvantage under present rail freight rates on coal shipments to eastern markets.

Final oral argument was given before the commission Tuesday in the apparent windup of a series of hearings on the case before state and federal agencies which began 1953.

The protest is directed against seven coal carrying railroads by the Eastern Bituminous Coal Association, Altoona, in behalf of mines comprising the district covering Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Centre, Clearfield, Huntingdon and Indiana counties.

Arthur L. Winn Jr., attorney for the association, told the PUC the central Pennsylvania soft coal industry is "on the way out" because its competitors are able to offer coal at prices $1 to 75 cents per ton under the Clearfield district price.

The association requested lower base rates on intrastate shipments to help offset what it termed "unduly prejudicial" and "unrealistically low" differential on interstate freight rates for longer hauls from the Westmoreland district and the Fairmont district of West Virginia to eastern destinations.

Winn said during the 30-year period between 1923 and 1953 Pennsylvania bituminous coal production dropped consistantly while that in West Virginia climbed. He said in 1953, Clearfeld produced 78 million tons less than in 1923 while Fairmont had increased its output by 26 million tons.

The attorney argued that the "preferential" rail rates allowed West Virginia to overcome and pass Pennsylvania as a soft coal producer. He also contended the out-of-state bituminous operators had taken many Pennsylvania markets from Commonwealth mines while "dominating" the eastern markets.

Principal soft coal haulers, chiefly the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads, opposed any reductions in base rates. Edward A. Kaier, one of the legal representatives for the railroads, said the rates should not be tampered with because interstate and intrastate charges are now in harmony.

Kaier said any reduction of intrastate base freight rates would have "serious effect" on the revenues of the railways hauling 50 million tons of coal annually within the Commonwealth.

Coal represents 32 per cent of the total freight tonnage carried on the Pennsylvania and New York Central lines in the state, Kaier said. He said "the railroads are in no position to take a rate reduction."

Western Pennsylvnia Coal Operators Association, Pittsburgh, also appeared briefly at the argument with a protest against the railways to protect its Westmoreland district members located in Allegheny, Fayette Greene, Washington and Westmoreland counties.

In a decision last year, the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled out any interstate rail rate changes in dismissing a Clearfield complaint that a 25-cents-per-gross-ton differential over the base intrastate rates should be increased to avoid ruinous competition.

The ICC left the differential undisturbed following a series of joint hearings in Washington with the Pennsylvania PCU. The federal commission later refused to reconsider its decision on a motion by the Clearfield district.

Dangers of X-rays Are Discussed by Experts

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP)—A U.S. Public Health Service official said today diagnostic medical X-rays are the largest single source of man-made radiation to which Americans are exposed.

The hazards of radiation were discussed here this morning at a special session of the sixth annual Pennsylvania Health Conference.

Dr. Clinton C. Powell, chief of the radiological health medical program of the PHS, said that whenever exposure to X-rays is contemplated the probable benefit must be weighed against the potential harm. He said the final decision on the necessity or desirability of any individual radiation exposure lies with doctors and dentists and other healing arts practicioners.

Powell said new, simple X-ray techniques probably will result in a significant reduction in patient exposure to radiation without adversely affecting medical diagnosis or therapy.

Dr. Berwyn F. Mattison, Pennsylvania state secretary of health, called radiation a major public health problem.

Reviewing work in the public health aspects of radiation by various federal and national agencies, Mattison said his department's "own brief experience in Pennsylvania has shown that inspection of sources of radiation in use day in and day out across the commonwealth can repeatedly uncover needless (and frequently unrecognized sources of stray radiation which are correctible on a practical and economical basis."

Dr. Jan Lieben, industrial hygiene division chief of the State Health Department, reported that 95 per cent of shoe-fitting fluoroscopes have been removed from shoe stores in Pennsylvania since the devices were outlawed a year ago. Lieben said approximately 6000 registrations of radiation machines in the state have been filed with his division. These, which are about one-third to one half of the actual number, include the X-ray apparatus of physicians, dentists, chiropodists, chiropractors and installations such as atomic reactors, industrial X-ray apparatus, static eliminators, electron microscopes, and particle accelerators.

JET BOMBER HITS THE DECK — AND THE OCEAN — Making a test flight in the Eastern Pacific, an A3D-2 Skywarrior twin-jet bomber attempts a landing on the USS Ticonderoga. The arresting gear didn't hold and the pilot, knowing the next stop was the ocean, pulled the plane's nose up (top left). The 23-ton craft sent spray flying as it hit the water (top right). The nose section broke free and the pilot and crewman bobbed in the water (lower, circle) for four minutes until a helicopter picked them up.

McKees Rocks Pair Goes to Chair Today

REIDSVILLE, Ga. (UP)—Two brothers from McKees Rocks, Pa., go to the electric chair today for raping a middle-aged spinster in a federal park near Chattanooga, Tenn.

George Krull, 35, and Michael Krull, 32, were to be executed at the state prison here. They were transferred to death row after nearly two years of efforts to have the sentence reversed.

Their plea for clemency was turned down by President Eisenhower last July after the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals had upheld their conviction.

The Krulls were found guilty of kidnaping the 52-year-old woman on a Chattanooga street and taking her at knifepoint to Chickamauga National Park, Ga

The brothers were arrested by a park ranger who saw George trying to drag the woman into the bushes.

The Krulls tried to escape from the federal prison in Atlanta two weeks ago, one day before they were resentenced to die. Both tried to escape an Atlanta jail before their original trial came up, and George earlier tried to flee from a north Georgia jail.

The Krulls grew up in a slum district of Pittsburgh in the 1930's. Each has a long list of convictions, including burglary, larceny and vagrancies.

The northern district federal court in Atlanta sentenced the Krulls. The case was then appealed to the court of appeals in New Orleans, where it was upheld. The appeals court ordered a resentencing because of an error in the judge's charge to the jury.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to reverse the sentence, but it was stayed until Eisenhower ruled on the clemency plea.

Th brothers wrote to the rape victim, asking that she make a plea in their behalf. She did not answer the letter, and said since the Krulls showed her no mercy she could show them none.

The execution is scheduled for sometime between noon and 3 p.m. e.d.t.

Lt. Gov. W. R. H. Patterson reminded the men that the Sept. 3 meeting will be for the nomination of the next lieutenant governor. Guests from all clubs of the district will be present.

Turnpike Brought into Federal Road System

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government today brought 2,100 miles of toll superhighways in 15 states into the federal interstate highway system.

Congress now must decide whether the federal government should buy the roads and make them toll-free or let the states maintain them and continue to collect tolls. The federal government is barred from maintaining toll highways.

The action by the Bureau of Public Roads was made on recommendations of the various state highway commissions. It brought parts of such famous superhighways as the Pennsylvania Turnpike and the New York Thruway into the 41,000-mile defense-linked federal highway system.

There were some notable omissions. The West Virginia Turnpike was left out altogether. So was the northeast extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike and most of the New Jersey Turnpike.

The bureau said these famous toll roads were omitted because they "didn't lie along general location lines of the interstate system."

New Jersey Omitted

New Jersey's Garden State Parkway was omitted because it bars trucks.

The bureau must tell Congress by next January how much it would cost to buy the roads. Congress then will decide whether to purchase them.

The bureau said it could give no preliminary estimate on the total cost.

Federal Highway Administrator Bertram D. Tallamy said the toll roads brought into the system represent about 5 per cent of the coast-to-coast network that will link 90 per cent of all cities of 50,000 or more population.

The government pays 90 per cent of the cost of the system which will total around 30 billion dollars.

Toll roads, or sections of them, brought into the federal program included:

Indiana Turnpike: Entire 151-mile route.

Kentucky Turnpike: Entire 40-mile route.

Ohio Turnpike: 173 miles from Pennsylvania line to Indiana line except Cleveland-Youngstown section.

Pennsylvania Turnpike: 359 miles from Ohio line to Bristol, except short section at eastern end and northeast extension.

Virginia: Richmond - Petersburg toll road, entire 35-mile route.

Syria Slipping

ALTHOUGH some of the important details are still lacking, what is happening in Syria is not good from the western point of view.

If the worst comes about, Soviet Russia will have succeeded in creating its first true satellite in the Middle East. And at best, a continuing source of unrest and potential explosion will be established. Either of these possibilities is bad.

Syria has been the most politically unstable of the principal Arab nations. Since World War II, it has been subjected to a perpetual series of coups d'etat, with one military dictator following another. Backward economically, even for this generally backward area of the world, the country has been a fertile field for trouble-making of the kind in which the Communists specialize.

The news dispatches from Damascus, the ancient capital city, say that a Communist-oriented military clique has taken over and is in the process of purging the armed forces of pro-western officers. And the natural supposition is that the Soviets will lose no time in moving in to whatever degree they think possible.

Unless Syria should attack one of its neighbors, there is not much the United States can do under the Eisenhower doctrine at the present time except to watch developments closely and be prepared to act decisively.

Our best hope, it would seem, lies in the trust and confidence of the more sober Arab leaders. They can do more than outsiders to prevent Syria from becoming a full-fledged satellite.

And of course our great friend, Turkey, remains a bulwark of strength in the Middle East.

The recent developments are serious and potentially dangerous. But the Middle East is still far from lost so far as the free world is concerned.

Solid Progress

MANY motorists are commenting approvingly on the new parking and traffic arrangements on Monessen's Donner Ave. in the principal shopping district.

They are finding visits to downtown Monessen much more convenient and pleasant. For the most part, traffic now moves evenly and swiftly with the annoying stopping and starting and creeping largely eliminated.

More motorists have also begun to use the off-street parking plazas, chiefly the multi-level one on Donner and Schoonmaker Ave. near Fourth St. And they are discovering that this facility is more convenient and safe than even the best space at the curb on a busy street.

The plaza is so designed that a car can be parked on any of its three levels, and the occupants can quickly reach either Donner Ave. or Schoonmaker Ave. with, at most, a flight of steps.

Since the meters in the plazas can be operated for extended periods, the motorist can be as leisurely as he likes in his shopping or other mission. And for patrons of the Park n' Shop stores, parking can be free — or nearly so.

Downtown Monessen still has some way to go before it can claim to have mastered all its parking and traffic problems. But solid progress is being made, and the public is demonstrating its approval of what is being done.

Another Payment

ANOTHER Monongahela Valley boy has paid with his life the price of high speed and immature judgment on the highways.

Youthful exuberance, a powerful automobile, a midnight ride, probably at high speed, a curve of the road — and another young life is snuffed out. Only good fortune saved the other two boys in the car.

This is the second such fatal disaster we have had to read about in this neighborhood in the space of a few months. The basic ingredients were the same in both accidents.

We do not like to join the chorus which has young America on the road to perdition. We do not think it is true. And we're sure it's not true that the average teen-ager is an irresponsible driver. The reverse is more likely the case.

But there are enough such drivers to be giving parents and public officials serious concern as to how these youngsters can be prevented from killing people.

A parent has to share the responsibility when he permits a child with a known penchant for speed to take to the highways. And the appropriate public officials must not flinch from denying such youngsters the right to drive from the first moment they are detected.

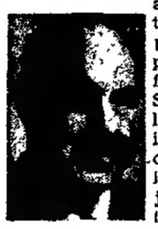
Brownell Stalled on 'Rights' Bill

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Here are some ironies about the breast-beating of the Justice Department for a tough civil rights bill, a bill even tougher than that now urged by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People:



Mr. Pearson

Irony No. 1 — Attorney General Brownell and the Justice Department have played ball for four years with Sen. Jim Eastland of Mississippi, bitterest opponent of civil rights. No judges, U. S. attorneys or U. S marshals have been appointed in Mississippi without his okay.

Irony No. 2 — Attorney General Brownell gave private backstage encouragement last year to the move to oust the one Negro who is a member of the Republican National Committee, Perry Howard of Mississippi. Howard has been a national committeeman longer than anyone in history — 33 years — a matter of pride to Negroes. Brownell encouraged the drive to oust him.

Irony No. 3 — Brownell has been working to build up the Republican party in the South through E. O. Spencer, owner of the Walthall Hotel in Jackson, Miss., in which the Mississippi White Citizens Council was first organized. The Council has had an office in Room 203 of the hotel. Brownell usually entertains Spencer in his home when the Mississippian comes to Washington.

Keeping Alive the Issue

Irony No. 4 — For four years the Justice Department dragged its feet on civil rights, thereby making it an issue in the 1956 presidential election. Today the Justice Department is opposing the Senate bill, thereby keeping civil rights an issue in the 1958 congressional election.

Sen. Tom Hennings, Missouri Democrat, whose great-grandfather was one of the biggest slave-holders in Georgia, developed some of the facts regarding this stalling in a withering cross-examination of Brownell last year.

"You have come up with no program during your four years, until April 1, I believe," Senator Hennings challenged.

Brownell replied that he had worked on such civil rights as restaurant segregation, discrimination in the armed forces and kindred measures.

"You know these were initiated in the preceding administration," Hennings was quick to point out.

"A great many of them, yes," Brownell admitted.

"We welcome your suggestion that there be a commission on civil rights in the Department of Justice," Hennings continued. "At my request on March 22, 1955, this letter was addressed to you."

He then read Brownell a letter one year old asking for his views on legislation proposing a civil rights commission.

"There was no reply from you whatsoever over a year ago relating to the establishment of a commission or a division," Hennings pressed.

The Attorney General squirmed and sparred. He could give no adequate explanation. Real fact is that while civil rights was being pushed for four years by Hennings and Congressman Celler in the House, they got no help from Brownell or from his Justice Department or from the Eisenhower administration.

Truman on Tobacco

Senator Neuberger of Oregon has received a letter from Harry Truman congratulating him on his stand to remove tobacco from the list of basic crops. "When the white man landed in the new world," wrote Truman, "He gave the Indian white men's diseases and the Indian gave him tobacco. "I don't know which has been worse."

Author Opposes Death Penalty

By UNITED PRESS

"Reflections On Hanging," by Arthur Koestler. (Macmillan): At intervals over the past 25 years, the British House of Commons has voted to abolish the death penalty. The majority opposing the gallows has never been large, and for technical reasons capital punishment is still the law of the land — but no British criminal has been executed for nearly two years.

Arthur Koestler, well-known author and ex-Communist, spearheaded the most recent campaign for abolition of the death penalty. His principal contribution was a tract, "Reflections on Hanging," which attracted wide attention when it was first published in the London Observer. This work is now published in the United States in book form, with the evident intention of persuading more states and the country as a whole to follow the example of the six states which have banned capital punishment.

Nixon's Formula for 1960

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Vice President Nixon doesn't have to prove to anybody that he is a smart politician. He is, and everybody knows it.

What Mr. Nixon has to do is to convince a large number of people that he a mature political leader who can be safely entrusted with the presidency.

Mr. Drummond

This will certainly be Mr. Nixon's formula for getting the 1960 Republican presidential nomination a minimum of politics and a maximum of statesmanship.

I don't know any reasonably objective person, politician or correspondent, in Washington today who does not recognize that the Vice President has grown visibly in grasp of affairs and in public stature during the last three years. His path to the 1960 nomination is more of the same and no veering off on any political detours.

It would be surprising if Mr. Nixon did not occasionally run into a temptation which would try to lure him into trying to further his cause by some political maneuver.

To Aid Knowland

The prospective fight between Goodwin Knight, who wants a third term as Governor of California, and retiring Sen. William Knowland, who wants a first term as Governor of California, is — or was — such a temptation.

If there is to be any serious opposition to a Nixon nomination, it will come from his fellow Californian, Mr. Knowland. So why wouldn't it be a pretty cute idea for the Vice President to join with "Goodie" Knight to knock his (Mr. Nixon's) only formidable opponent out of the running?

Undoubtedly it occurred to him. What is significant is that Mr. Nixon has decided to take the risk of actually helping to put Mr. Knowland in a stronger position to bid for the presidential nomination — than to entangle himself in a maneuver which would be all politics and nothing more and which, though it might help Nixon, could well hurt the Republican Party.

Obviously it puts no strain on Mr. Nixon to oppose Governor Knight since Governor Knight has so stoutly and so recently (at the San Francisco convention) opposed Mr. Nixon. But it it, nevertheless, a decision of some breadth and courage for the Vice President to choose to try to put into the powerful and strategic governorship of California the only Republican who, as things look now, can conceivably take the 1960 presidential nomination away from him.

Mr. Nixon considers his competitor, Mr. Knowland, the man who would make the best race for the California governorship and who would make the best governor.

Minimum of Politics

Although the governorship of California will give to Mr. Knowland the best possible springboard from which to seek the 1960 presidential nomination, Mr. Nixon is still going to support him.

This is what the Vice President's supporters mean when they say his own formula is: a minimum of politics, a maximum of statesmanship.

My information is that Mr. Nixon is disposed to be pretty philosophical about what will happen to him in 1960. He figures that if there is a great upsurge of political conservatism in the nation during the next three years and that if, therefore, the Republican Party wants to nominate and believes it can win with a candidate representative of the conservative wing of the party and disposed to "go it alone" in some important aspects of world affairs, then Mr. Knowland will be their man and there will be little he can do about it.

But there are strong arguments and precedents against this happening. There is nothing in sight to suggest that anybody to the right of Dwight Eisenhower would have any chance of winning the presidency. Furthermore, not once since 1932 has the Republican Party failed to choose a nominee to the left of its own political center — Landon, Willkie, Dewey, Eisenhower.

Vice President Nixon is steadily identifying himself at this point of the political compass.

'Doc' Likes the Way British Queen Talks

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK, Aug. 21 (UP)—In time of great controversy, it is best to plunge right in and take sides. I have an opinion which will not be kept silent. I like the way Queen Elizabeth talks.

It is cool and crisp and, to an American who admittedly doesn't know much about such things, its tone is that of a queen, queenly. There is no slurring to her speech; you understand every word she says—a happy attribute which 10,000 American politicians should copy.

Among my phonograph records is a prized recording of Elizabeth as a child princess saying goodnight to the children of bomb-ravaged England in a radio broadcast from an underground shelter during the London blitz. Even then she sounded regal and—to me, at least—deeply inspiring.

Reaction Against Ads?

Maybe it is a reaction against the Madison Ave. sincere - sell unctuous utterance which comes whinnying and braying at us from TV and radio in this country, but I find relief and listenability in a voice that is high, precise, and even a trfle flat.

There have been many verbal slaps and one dockwalloping physical slap delivered on Lock Altrincham in London because he wrote, among other criticisms, that Queen Elizabeth's speaking style was "a pain in the neck."

It's his privilege to be pained and complain about it. However, a major portion of his complaint seems to be against "the utterances which are put into her mouth" by her ghost writers. He says they're priggish as a school girl's talk.

And then, there's another peer, the young Marquess of Londonderry, who bemoans the royal family's "toothpaste smiles" and "deplorable clothes."

Well, lackaday, such are the trials of office. Last June the "league against cruel sports" accused the Queen of "contemptuous regard" for animal welfare workers because of failure to include any well-known one in her birthday honors list.

Queen Coming Soon

Queen Elizabeth will be visiting us in October. She will be given some elaborate receptions and perhaps some not so elaborate—like that great day in the 1920's when Queen Marie of Romania arrived in the United States and was greeted by the immortal words of a newspaper photographer posing the royal party.

"Hey Queenie," he yelled, "move over."

Whether there should be some changes made in the British court and royal family's way of life and dress is a swirl of debate we can watch with delighted detachment over here. But as for Queen Elizabeth herself, the weight of U.S. man-in-the - street opinion can be expressed no more succinctly than by quoting the old song (with special permission of the copyright owner) "Stay As Sweet As You Are."

Eisenhower Doctrine Ineffective for Syria

By DONALD J. GONZALES

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Eisenhower Doctrine is ineffective for dealing with the current pro-Communist crisis in Syria.

Worry, talk and hope—in large amounts—seem to be about all the United States can do in the immediate emergency. Moscow and its Syrian puppets are callingt he grab-for-power tune and probably will continue to do so for some time.

When Congress approved the Eisenhower Doctrine last March there was some faint hope it might deflect Syria and Egypt from their policy of cuddling up to Moscow. The idea was that the two anti-Western nations might at least be forced to return to a more neutral course in their East-West relations.

Bad To Worse

Nothing of the sort has happened after five months of Eisenhower Doctrine operations. Egypt is on its most anti-American propaganda binge. In Syria pro-Communist army and intelligence officers are in command of the Soviet equipped military. This development may well threaten the Syrian government itself.

Syria would have been eligible for American economic and military aid under the Eisenhower Doctrine if it had sought American help. But the Syrians berated the wholei dea from the beginning and kept on receiving arms from the Soviet Union. Syrian propaganda denounced the American move to promote stability in the Middle East as a plot to stamp out Arab neutrality and strengthen Israel

To Strengthen Friends

In its broad outlines the Eisenhower Doctrine was designed to strengthen friendly nations in the Middle East to resist Communist penetration. Millions of American dollars were doled out to strengthen Middle Eastern military and police units, for communications development, irrigation, flood control, housing, education and other projects. This featureo f the doctrine seems to be aving some success.

The doctrine, however, was not tailored to counter direct moves inside a Middle Eastern country to set up a Communist or pro-Communist regime. The administration told Congress the aim was to deal with Red aggression when it was launched against a peaceful neighbor—external aggression in other words.

Good Morning, Teacher

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Some jottings from the back-to - school front.

That classroom bulge is growing bigger. Government statisticians say that in the next month some 42,000,000 students will head for the classroom. This is 2,500,000 more than last year, with enrollment expected to be higher in both secondary schools and colleges.

Here is how the total is broken down: Grade school enrollment, including kindergarten, expected to be 30,670,000; and; high school, 8,424,000; college, 3,244,000.

The old - fashioned slate has disappeared from the classroom. But they still are using the blackboard, now often turned green.

The Childcraft Equipment Co., manufacturer of school supplies, said green blackboards which came into popularity two years ago now account for about half its sales. The green is supposed to be restful to the eyes.

Abraham Lincoln is said to have used charcoal and the back of a shovel to do his homework. Today's child has unlimited facilities, including pencils in 72 colors for everything from handwriting to map work.

'Clyde Nissen, executive vice president of the Lead Pencil Manufacturers' Assn., said pencils are fatter, because they are easier for a child to grasp. Tablets, he said, are becoming smaller.

Pencil boxes, once conservative rectangles, now reflect childish interest in everything from Roy Rogers to space travel. They are shaped like airplanes, rockets, and baseball bats, and embossed with pictures of sports figures or cowboy heroes.

Nissen said the ball point pen has not blotted pencil sales; per capita usage of pencils is at its highest, nine each year.

"And next to big business and Uncle Sam, school children are our best customers," he said. "This, despite the fact a lot of their pencils are filched from Pop's office."

Stock Trading Slow

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—For those who worry about those things, it might be some comfort to know that in only one year of this century has the turnover of listed shares been as slow as it has been in 1957.

That year was 1942 when stock exchange stock sales for the whole year were only 125,685,298 shares. That total represented a turnover of 9 per cent of the 1,463,295,021 shares then listed.

This year has been running at a rate of 534,000,000 shares or a turnover of 11 per cent of the 4,705,122,122 shares listed.

At the current rate of trading it would take nine years to turnover all the listed shares of stock.

In 1942 the market made a low of 92.92 in the industrial average. Many date the current bull market from that time. And they insist it's still a bull market because it hasn't died according to the way bull markets die in Wall Street.

Betty Ann Ambrose Becomes Bride of Duane Earl Lowe

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Betty Ann Ambrose, daughter of Mrs. Rose Ambrose, of Fayette City R. D. 1, to Duane Earl Lowe. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lowe, of 319 Short St., Belle Vernon.

The double ring ceremony uniting them in marriage was solemnized in the Roscoe Branch Church of Jesus Christ. George Johnson, presiding elder, read the lines of the service at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, Saturday, Aug. 10. For the occasion the church altar was decorated with white gladiolus and ferns. The aisle used by the bridal party was lined with white crash, and family pews were indicated with white satin bows.

Nuptial Music

Preceding the rites was a prelude of nuptial music played by the church pianist, Bertha Jean Ward. Among her selections were, "O Promise Me" and "Because", which she also sang.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Gaspar Karreli, the bride was attired in a floor length gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over satin fashioned with a chapel length train. It featured a sabrina neckline with long lace sleeves ending in points over the wrists. Her headpiece was a semi-juliet cap trimmed in lace and holding a fingertip veil of imported illusion. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid from which fell satin shower streamers knotted with lilies of the valley.

Serving as maid of honor was Isabelle Bower, a close friend of the bride. Her chapel length gown of aqua satin featured a boat neckline of turquoise. Her headpiece was also a semi-juliet cap of aqua feathers with a short veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of carnations tinted to match her gown.

Flower Girl

The flower girl was the bridegroom's niece, Marilyn Lowe. She wore a white dress which featured puffed sleeves and scalloped hemline. Her hat was accented with a white clip, which matched her gloves. She carried a nosegay of carnations.

The groom had asked a close friend, Harold Russell, to serve as best man. Ushers were Wesley Lowe, brother of the bridegroom, and Michael Comadena, uncle of the bride.

Guy Karreli, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Ambrose, mother of the bride, wore a poudre blue lace dress with white accessories. Mrs. Lowe, mother of the bridegroom, wore a poudre blue crystalette dress with white accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

The bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Lawrence Ambrose, of Belle Vernon, and Mrs. Gaspar Karreli, of Fairhope, also attended. They wore pink rose corsages with their ensembles.

Hornets Have Novel Financing Plan

West Newton has come up with a novel idea for financing a camp site trip for the Hornet grid team. Members of the Hornet grid team sell tickets to "boosters" of the team which entitle the purchaser to a pass to the West Newton-South Huntingdon game on September 26, thus killing two birds with one stone — the boys go to camp and a top crowd is assured for the grid tilt. Coach Andy Yartin will drill the Hornets at home this week and then move to Laurel State Park for the final week of preparations . . . West Newton opens with a new foe (for the Hornets) Bentleyville in an afternoon game at the Bears' field on September 13.

Pitt's Billy Kaliden, of Homestead, tabbed as No. 1 quarterback for this coming season, is quite a baseball standout as well as a gridder. He led the McKeesport Daily News League in doubles with 18, breaking the old mark of 16 in one season set by Joe Milcevich in 1952. Kaliden tied another mark by driving in 50 runs to equal the RBI mark set in 1955 by George Hays of Kelsey-Hayes . . . On the subject of the McKeesport area, Eddie Sullivan, former Tiger grid standout is ready for his senior year at Notre Dame where he will be the starting center. He played 380½ minutes for the Irish last season, topped only by Bronko Nagurski's 383 minutes of action. The Irish will definitely have a more experienced club this season and should be on the way back.

Ex-Hounds Getting in Shape Early

Several ex-Monessen High gridders were working out on their own at the Stadium Annex when the 'Hounds opened drills Monday. Tossing the ball around and engaging in calisthentics were John Mallino, who'll head for Penn State; John Stunda, who is off to North Carolina; Maurice Mathieu, to Miami; Bob Burns and John Bogovich, both going to Arizona State. Several area gridders are out Arizona way including McKeesport's Gary Slater and Joe Pesci of Freeport, both being counted upon as top talent this season . . . Connellsville High does not have a game for opening night in the WPIAL, Friday, September 13. The Cokers would like to have a home game.

In patting the local Recreation Board on the back last week we mentioned the board in general, now here it is in particular — Stephen Pfeister, chairman, Ray DeRosca, William Parkinson, Alex Kachmarik and Nick Cullen, members. The board attempts, and succeeds, in providing a wholesome recreation program here at all times . . . Incidentally, at the Recreation Department picnic last week the All-Star teams in the Little League Minors who made up the Green and Yellow teams were comprised of players from the Pirates and Yankees for the Greens and from the Braves and Whitesox for the Yellows . . . John Dacko's lads put on quite a show, indicating excellent training during the summer months.

Pitt Plans More 'Air Attacks'

According to a story appearing in a national magazine, Pitt will take more to the airlanes in its gridiron attack this year than ever before, except maybe when Clark Shaughnessy was guiding the Panthers in the post-war ear, which the Pitts would rather forget. Pitt's tub-thumper Carroll Cook, pens the story on the "air" plans, which may involve Charleroi's Jim Lenhart, for he is an excellent tosser. Pitt coaches claim his fault has been "slowness afoot" . . . Penn State and Pennsylvania U. will break off grid relations in 1959. Although they had met off and on for 67 years, the Lions and Quakers have been annual foes only since 1952. Bellmar's ex-star fullback Glenn Shepler is expected to be a Penn bright spot this season.

Sugar Ray Calls Off Bout; Leaves Loophole

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK (UP)—Sugar Ray Robinson formally called off next month's million-dollar fight with Carmen Basilio today, but he left a loophole for it to go on again.

Robinson said his formal withdrawal from the Yankee Stadium fight Sept. 23 was mailed today to the New York State Athletic Commission; but, nevertheless, he would fight if promoter Jim Norris came to terms quickly in their dispute over theater-television.

"Meanwhile, my attorney, Martin Machat, will start legal proceedings against Norris and his International Boxing Club for breach of contract," the middleweight champion said

Basilio Continues Training

Admittedly surprised, Norris stated, "The fight's still on as far as we're concerned, and there'll be no change in the theater-television arrangements."

Equally confident that the fight would be staged, welterweight champion Basilio continued training at Alexandria Bay, N.Y., for his attempt to wrest the middleweight crown from Robinson. Basilio commented, however, "if Robinson runs out on this fight, I'll know he's afraid of me. He looked petrified at the signing, anyway."

The dispute is about who shall handle the theater-TV. Norris has signed a contract with Theater Network Television, Inc., the closed - circuit organization that presented 15 previous IBC fights, starting in June, 1951.

Robinson insists that the Teleprompter Corp., which handles much industrial and convention closed - circuit work, be given the fight because it had guaranteed a minimum of 400,000 theater seats, which would translate into about $250,000 for Robinson's end.

That's 150,000 more seats than TNT could guarantee, Robinson says.

Permission Not Sought

Sugar Ray claims that Norris signed the contract with TNT "without my permission," and thereby broke the signed agreement that the theater-TV rights would not be sold "without my written consent."

When Nathan L. Halpern, president of TNT, first made a survey of prospects for the fight, he said he could guarantee 375,000 theater seats, Robinson explained. "But last week we received a letter and formal contract from Norris, stating that Halpern could guarantee only 250,000 seats. We notified Norris that was not acceptable and that we had an outfit giving a much better guarantee."

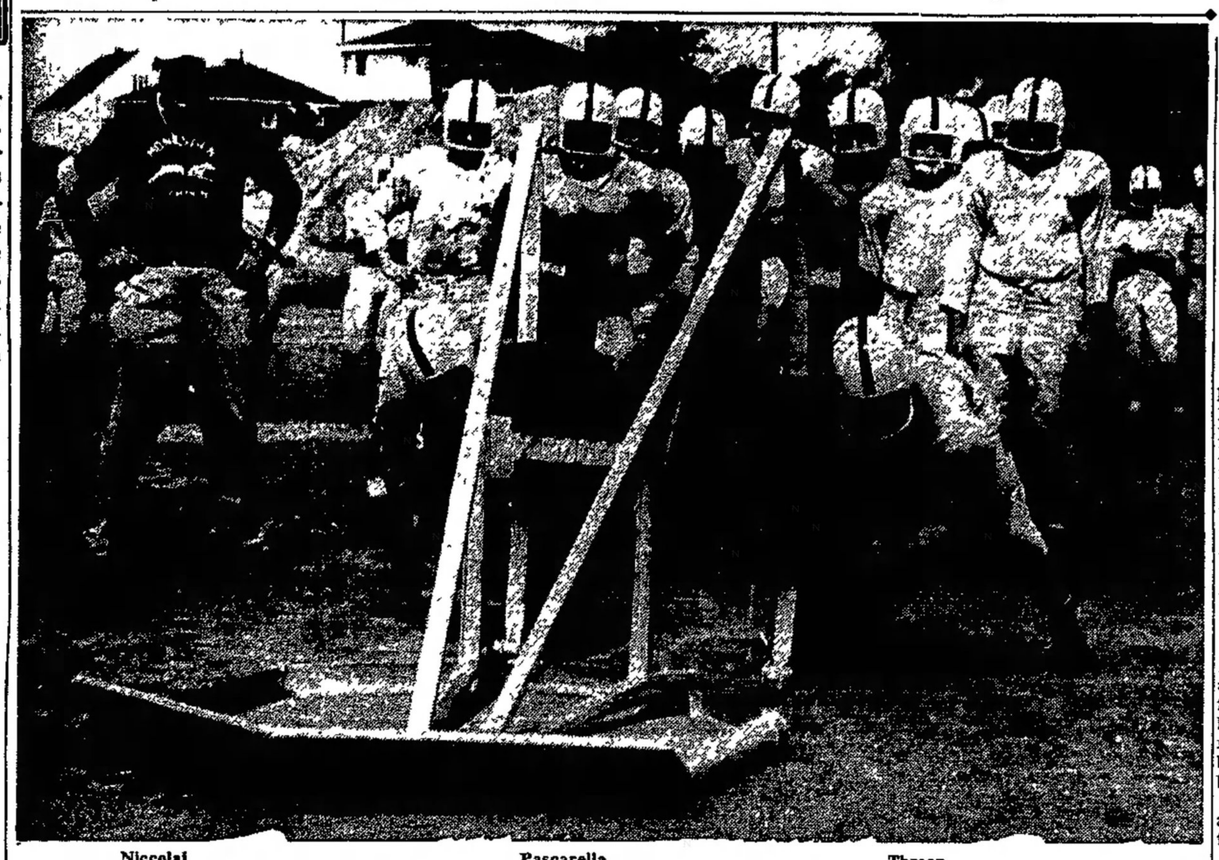
In five runnings of the Laurel International a total of 31 foreign horses have been flown to America to run in the Maryland event.

New Eagle Blasts Fay. City 'Out', 10-2



Niccolai — Pascarella — Throop

MHS GRID MENTOR ARMAND NICCOLAI watches as Vince Pascarella and Terry Throop hit the charging machine during opening drills for the 1957 grid season at the Stadium Annex here where the Greyhounds are working out daily Other 'Hound grid candidates anxiously await their turn to show the "boss" their charging form.

Winners in Title Series Opener at Charleroi Tonight

New Eagle literally blasted Fayette City out of the Mon Valley League playoffs with a 10-2 victory at Fayette City last night to sweep the five-game series in three starts.

Vic Furiga fashioned a three-hitter last night as he blanked Fayette City until the sixth when Hal Livingstone nicked the New Eagle tosser for a homer with a runner who had walked, on base.

The visitors, who now advance to the title round with Charleroi at Charleroi Stadium tonight at 5:45 o'clock (and not at Fayette City as it was originally announced for the Charleroi home games) took an early 10-0 lead last night.

The early margin came on three runs in the third, five in the fourth and two in the fifth. Biggest blow for Frank Furiga's lads was a bases loaded triple by Fred Cox in the fourth inning and a double by Gene Uhlman, only extra base blows of the game

Furiga, Lou Sepe and Joe Reale all had two singles to help their team to victory.

Mike Panich was knocked from the box early and Frank Valla relieved for Fayette City but the damage was done.

Thus the Legionnaires bow out of the championship race after holding first place for most of the season until a late slump from which they never recovered.

Space on Pirate 'Special' Friday

Wanna see the Pirate - Redlegs game Friday night?

Plans had been made quite some time ago by the Belle Vernon American Legion Post to take a "busload" of fans to the game Friday and a full turnout was assured.

Since then, however, a sudden change of work turns has forced nearly half of those originally planning on attending, to cancel out.

If you'd like to attend, for a very nominal fee (reserved seat ticket and transportation), see the steward Cleo Valdiserri at the Post Home, Broad Avenue, Belle Vernon or call Belle Vernon 9945 before 8 o'clock this evening. Remember 8 o'clock is the deadline.

Champion to Seek KO Tonight

CHICAGO (UP) — Lightweight champion Joe Brown rates his TV opponent tonight, Joey Lopes, as a tough boy, but he thought today he might ring up the 28th knockout of his career.

"I won't have to look for him," Brown said. "He'll be there. So if I can nail him, I'll knock him out"

Brown, who has won 65 battles, lost 14 and drawn, 8, will not risk his title in the 10-round bout, since it is an overweight match. He expected to weigh about 137 and Lopes, 29, expected to weigh 135½

"They tell me Lopes has never been knocked out," Brown said, "and I know he's a good rough tough fighter But he's a club fighter. When I fought (Orlando) Zulueta, he'd never been knocked off his feet, so tonight I'm going to try to establish another first and finish Lopes."

Opening Game Of LL World Series Today

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UP) — Monterrey, Mexico, and Bridgeport, Conn. square off today in the opening game of the Little League World Series with all the pomp and ceremony of its major league counterpart.

La Mesa, Calif., and Escanaba, Mich., originally were to have opened the small fry big event but colds among some of the Californians forced their first round game to be put off until Thursday.

The consolation game between the first round losers, originally scheduled for Thursday, will be played as a preliminary to the championship game on Friday afternoon

Everything about the Little League is done in "big league style" except for the size of the diamond which is scaled down to fit the little fellows The league is restricted to boys eight to 12 years old, and no team is allowed to have more than five boys of 12, and each team must have at least three boys 16 or under.

The teams, which are spread across the nation and number about 4,000, are sponsored by industrial firms, civic organizations and service clubs

No admissions are charged for Little League games and managers are unpaid volunteers.

Ravens Erase Hallers; PNA Tilt Tonight

One round of the local City Softball League playoffs is over and another round set for tonight when PNA battles the Ravens at 6 o'clock in a best-of-three series

The Ravens advanced to tonight's game with a 9-4 win over Italian Hall last night, the second win in two games of the three-game series for the Ravens

Seven runs in the second inning did it for the Ravens last night A rally by Italian Hall in the last inning fell short after three runs

During the seven-run uprising in the second inning, Delio Perozzi singled and Lou Kunka homered followed by successive singles which produced another run Jim Cherocci then blasted out a round-tripper which accounted for three more runs. Then came a base-on-balls, wild pitch and another single.

The three Italian Hall runs in the last frame came off Pitcher Ed Chuprinka, who relieved Jesse Kunka in the fourth. Three singles and two bases on balls produced the runs.

Steve Hardoby of Italian Hall relieved starter Ral Sekoski on the mound in the second inning and hurled shutout ball the rest of the way Bob Mascetta, Andy Kalie and Perozzi collected two singles each while Hardoby had two hits for the best Haller batting effort

PNA will send its fine pitching staff of "Binks" Adamczyk and Paul Petrusky against the heavy-hitting Ravens tonight. The winner of this new series will meet the Myfords in a three - game set.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Swaying

The really terrible sand shots — the ones that fly over the green on a dead line and the ones that fly nowhere at all — almost always stem from swaying.

If you sway backward on the backswing and don't compensate for it on the downswing, your clubhead will enter the sand behind where you want it to. Result? The ball is left in the trap.

If you sway forward too much coming into the ball, you are more than apt to contact the ball before you do the sand. These are the shots that go sailing over the green into bigger trouble.

The cure is simple: DON'T SWAY! And to make sure you don't sway, keep your head still. You will find this easier to do in the sand if you pick out the exact place in the sand you want the clubhead to contact first — and keep your eye riveted on that spot!

Over-anxious Pitch Beats Law, Bucs, 3-1

PITTSBURGH (UP)—One over-anxious throw by pitcher Vernon Law and that one to second base sent the Pittsburgh Pirates down to defeat Tuesday night.

Trying too hard for a double play, Law threw into the ground and opened the way for the Milwaukee Braves to score a 3-1 victory in their last appearance of the season at Forbes Field.

Law had pitched excellent ball for almost eight innings. After Eddie Mathews had checked his swing in the first and accidentally hit a double, Law set down 20 batters in a row.

The Braves finally broke the ice in the eighth with singles by Bob Hazle and Felix Mantilla. With one out and runners on first and third, Del Crandall tapped a grounder to Law who then muffed on the throw to Dick Groat, allowing Hazle to score.

The Pirates battled even in the bottom of the eighth on Roberto Clemente's triple off the left-field wall and a sacrifice fly by Gene Freese.

Luis Arroyo, relieving in the ninth, was reached for a single by Red Schoendienst who came around to score on Mathews' triple to right.

Roy Face then went to the mound and was greeted with a single by Hank Aaron which tallied Mathews.

Arroyo was charged with the loss, his 11th against only three victories.

The win credit went to Warren Spahn, the 36-year-old southpaw who now has a 15-8 card, including five straight victories and four triumphs over the Bucs this season.

The Pirates rest today. They open a three-game series against the Cincinnati Redlegs on Thursday.

Dawson Promoted To Starting QB

OLEAN, N Y. (UP)—Len Dawson, the Pittsburgh Steelers No. 1 choice in last winter's National Football League draft, will man the starting quarterback slot when the Steelers meet the Cleveland Browns Saturday night in an exhibition game at the Akron, Ohio, Rubber Bowl.

Coach Walt Kiesling gave the nod to the former Purdue star after two defensive drills at the Steeler training camp here at St. Bonaventure University.

Ted Marchibroda and Jack Scarbath, the first and second string quarterbacks, suffered thumb injuries in last Saturday's 24-7 loss to the Chicago Bears.

Joining Dawson in the backfield will be rookie Dick Hughes and Jack O'Brien in the halfback spots and veteran Fran Rogel at fullback.

No-Hitter Makes Yankees Wonder Why They Let Keegan Get Away; Turley Also Haunts Ex-Mates

By MILTON RICHMAN

There was a short pause in the pennant races today to welcome Bob Keegan into the no-hit, no-run fraternity and to let the Yankees ponder why they ever allowed him to get away to the White Sox.

Keegan, a 36 - year - old right-hander, was cut loose by the Yankees five years ago, written off as a chronic sore-arm case who would never make his mark in the majors. But he did it Tuesday night when he pitched the first no-hitter of the season to beat Washington, 6-0, in the nightcap of a twi-night doubleheader. The Senators won the opener, 5-4.

Keegan walked only two batters in fashioning his no-hitter, the first in regular major league season competition since Sal Maglie of the Dodgers turned in one against the Phillies last Sept 25. The only no-hitter since then was Don Larsen's perfect game against the Dodgers in the World Series last Oct. 8.

Eighth Victory

The victory was Keegan's eight of the season and it was made possible by a five-run third inning, during which Larry Doby hit a two-run homer. Ed Fitzgerald's eighth inning homer for the Senators broke up a 4-4 tie in the opener.

Ralph Terry, another pitcher the Yankees let get away, came back to haunt them Tuesday night when he beat them, 1-0, for Kansas City. The A's collected only two hits off Bob Turley but those hits resulted in the only run of the game when Woody Held doubled in the fifth inning and scored on Tim Thompson's single.

The loss was Turley's first against the Athletics, whom he had defeated 11 times previously during his career. It was also Kansas City's second victory over the Yanks this season in 18 meetings.

Cleveland beat Boston, 5-4, and Detroit licked Baltimore, 5-1, in the other American League games.

Braves Beat Pirates

In the National League, first-place Milwaukee rallied for two runs in the ninth to defeat Pittsburgh, 3-1; the Cardinals took two games from the Giants, 4-3 and 3-2; Brooklyn swept a pair from Cincinnati, winning the opener, 11-5, and the 12-inning nightcap, 6-5, while the Cubs beat the Phillies, 5-2, in the nightcap after dropping the first game, 2-1, in 10 innings.

Early Wynn preserved Cleveland's victory when he halted a three-run rally in the ninth inning by the Red Sox. Gene Woodling's eighth inning homer proved to be the deciding run. Ted Williams went hitless in two official trips to the plate, his batting average dropping to .389.

Jim Bunning of the Tigers struck out 10 batters and limited the Orioles to seven hits in notching his 15th victory. Ray Boone gave Bunning all the margin he needed with a two-run homer in the first inning and the Tigers added three more runs in the third off loser Skinny Brown.

Spahn Wins 15th

Southpaw Warren Spahn of the Braves held the Pirates to seven hits in gaining his 15th triumph. With the score tied 1-1, the Braves pushed over a pair of runs in the ninth on Red Schoendienst's single, Eddie Mathews' triple and another single by Hank Aaron.

Stan Musial slammed out five hits, including a homer in each game, to help the Cards to their two victories over the Giants. Sam Jones scattered 10 hits in the opener while 18-year-old Van McDaniel gave up eight hits in the nightcap, including a homer by Daryl Spencer. Ken Boyer and Eddie Kasko homered for St. Louis in the opener.

Duke Snider's 33rd homer of the season and second of the night in the 12th inning decided the nightcap for Brooklyn after the Dodgers had capitalized on a fine relief job by Ed Roebuck to top the Redlegs in the first game.

Stan Lopata's 10th inning homer snapped the Cubs' six-game winning streak as Curt Simmons ad Dick Farrell of the Phils combined to pitch a three-hitter in the first game. Robin Roberts suffered his 17th setback in the nightcap when he was tagged for back-to-back homers by Ernie Banks and Jerry Kindall in a three-run fourth inning. Reliever Don Elston was the winning pitcher.

Billy Talbert 'Hot' in 77th Doubles Event

CHESTNUT HILL Mass (UP)—U S. Davis Cup Captain Billy Talbert might be tempted to play himself in the challenge round if he continues his current success in the third round today of the 77th annual national doubles championship.

And well he might if he maintains the same prowess and stamina he displayed Tuesday with Gil Shea in sweeping a couple of his Davis Cup charges out of the second round at the Longwood Cricket Club.

Talbert and Shea, the 28-year-old Californian who is ninth-ranked nationally, staged a terrific show of doubles tennis as they ousted Sam Giammalva nd Brry MacKay, seventh-seeded, 9-7, 7-5, 4-6, 4-6, 9-7.

Today they play Straight Clark of Philadelphia and David Harum of Miami, Fla., in a featured match while the seven surviving seeded teams were facing more so-so competition.

Everything looked serene in the women's division but Althea Gibson and Darlene Hard seem safe from the type of upset that rocked the ladies' side Tuesday. After the Wimbledon champs won their first match here, the calmness was shattered when Mrs Midge Buck, 48 of Manchester, Mass., and Mrs Kay McKean, 43, of Hamilton, Mass., toppled third-seeded Shirley Bloomer and Sheila Armstrong of England, 6-4, 7-5.

'Slow Motion' Earns Keegan First No-Hitter

CHICAGO (UP)—Bob Keegan of the Chicago White Sox said today that a new "slow motion" windup helped him hurl the season's first no-hitter.

The 36-year-old right - hander, once considered washed up because of arm trouble, tried out his new delivery Tuesday night for the first time as he blanked the Washington Senators, 6-0, walking two batters and striking out only one.

In demonstrating his new windup, Keegan said it is similar to a golfer taking a slower backswing.

"In other words, instead of pulling my arm back in a hurry in the preliminary motion, I do it slowly," he said. Keegan said this gives him more control and helps to keep him from tiring.

Keegan said he was "confident" that his new style was working by the fourth inning.

"I could tell then that the Senators didn't have any hits in them," he said.

Rademacher Has 'Flexible Plans' For Title Bout

By HAL WOOD

SEATTLE, Wash. (UP)—Challenger Pete Rademacher, a lean 210-pounds of fighting farmer, said today he had laid "flexible" plans for his 15-round heavyweight championship bout with Floyd Patterson Thursday night.

By "flexible," he said he meant he would wait adn see how Patterson wanted the bout to go — cautiously or a sluggign match.

"I have no definite pre-conceived plan of battle," said the soft-spoken ex-Army lieuteant. "The only time I tried that before, in the amateur ranks, I got licked."

But exuding confidence from every pore, the former Washington State football player and current Olympic heavyweight boxing champion, wasn't a bit worried about what lay ahead.

"As a matter of fact, we aren't looking past this bout in any way," he pointed out, "but we already have many offers for the future."

Both the Patterson and Rademacher camps set light calisthenics and long walks as the order of the day as they awaited the weighing-in ceremonies Thursday at noon p s t. Rademacher said he expected to come in at "around 210" pounds.

Patterson, while signing dozens of autographs for boys from a nearby school visiting his training set-up, said he figured he was in just as good condition now as he was for the Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson battle last month.

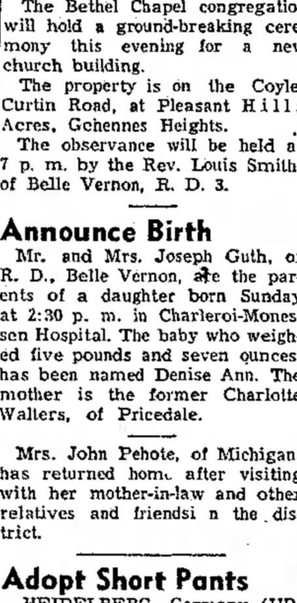
Adopt Short Pants

HEIDELBERG, Germany (UP) —The U.S. Army announced the adoption today of a short-pants summer uniform for its troops in Europe. The new ruling applies only to duty dress, and does not affect the ban on German lederhosen — leather shorts — imposed two years ago as part of a general campaign to make off-duty soldiers dress more neatly and conservatively.



'YOU WANT ME?' — Swaggering into a New York police station, burly, 230-pound Vincente L. Gigante, ex-boxer known as "The Chin," asked (above), "Do you want me in the Costello case?" Gigante had been sought for questioning in the shooting of gambling czar Frank Costello last May. Costello was grazed in the scalp.

Armed Forces to Get Flu Vaccine

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U.S. Armed forces will begin receiving Asiatic flu vaccine in about a month, officials said today.

A Defense spokesman said first priority will go to men overseas, their families and Defense Department civilian employes overseas.

The department has for several years given a flu shot to military men. This year, officials said, a so-called monovalent shot, to combat solely the Asiatic flu strain, will be given first. Later the usual polyvalent shot will be given.

Red China Decision Near

WASHINGTON (UP)—The State Department was reported near a decision today on whether to permit a limited number of American newsmen to go to Red China.

If the decision is affirmative, as expected, the next question will be whether the Communist Chinese will admit American newsmen.

American passports have been marked invalid for travel to Red China since the Reds took over the China mainland seven years ago. A group of American students is enroute to China now despite the State Department's strenuous objection.

A year ago Red China invited a number of American correspondents to visit the mainland. The State Department however stood by its travel ban. This decision has been protested during the last year by the press, radio, television, members of Congress, private organizations and others.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his advisers have been quizzing news media to find out how many organizations would like a correspondent to go to Red China for a trial period of six months. The survey is understood to be complete.

Explains Framework of City Planning Commission

(Following are excerpts from a talk delivered before the Monessen Rotary Club yesterday by Thomas F. Preston, a member of the City Planning Commission. Because it describes the framework within which Monessen's "master plan" is being prepared, much of the talk is being published here.)

By THOMAS F. PRESTON

It is my privilege to represent the Monessen Planning Commission. The Planning Commission has been particularly active during the past two years.

Its present make-up is Dr. Joseph Dudas, chairman; Rotarians Bill (William H.) Pore and Chuck (Charles E.) Hagerstrand, vice-chairman and secretary respectively; Mario Galuppo and your speaker.

We vary in religiousa ffiliations, political principles, racial origins, occupations and financial stability. But we have two things in common: one, an intense desire for the best Monessen possible; two, all five of us can walk under a five and a half foot awning without stopping.

To take care of the city's problems, the citizens elect various officials. In addition, the elected administration engages the services of others for routine work.

Seeks Solutions

In the American scheme of city management, various commissions and committees of interested citizens are chosen to study or carry out specific assignments or solve recurrent problems. The civic-minded citizen is proud of his city and desirous of its welfare.

But civic pride does not close his eyes to his city's faults. No, he observes them and seeks their solution. He notes that his city is changing, growing, and at the same time generating new needs.

Some of you have been here for much of Monessen's life, have seen it grow in its physical boundaries, its industrial and commercial acreage, its population and cultural aspects.

Monessen was laid out in the horse and buggy age, in an area with restricted bottom land and a generally hilly terrain. Its business area was diagrammed in rectangular blocks and very narrow building lots. It was designed to be compact. Horse and buggy or foot travel suggested that the natural thing to do was to concentrate, in a small area, all of the sources to supply a man's needs.

Wants Increased

Then along came the motor age and electric power. From a radius of convenient action to many miles, man's activities enlarged his radius of convenient action to many miles. Correspondingly, his wants increased and he could travel in comfort to satisfy them.

New businesses were born and old ones were required to expand. Population grew and additional living accommodations were needed. In other words, we needed more room to do more things, more room for living, more room for working.

So, in actuality, a new community had to rise on the foundations of the old community plus expansion areas.

At the start, the development of the expansion areas was the province of the several landowners. Later, a professional city planning organization laid out plans for the new subdivisions, integrating them into the existing community. In the main this plan has been followed. We want the best plan possible — a happy home, a happy community is but an earlier heaven.

City planning is more than the layouts of streets. It also includes proper use of land — for heavy industry, light industry, commercial and residential purposes; community service, cultural centers, transportation and the like. It designates areas of actual or threatened blight calling for remedial or preventive measures.

Master Plan

These various facets of the problem are encompassed in what is called a Master Plan. Monessen's Master Plan will prescribe the overall physical pattern of the entire community, for the near future and for the long range.

For the near future the goals will be stated precisely and specifically. Measures to achieve them can be started at once on the completion of the plan. For the long range, more flexibility must be provided.

The Monessen Master Plan will indicate the direction in which we should go to achieve ultimate goals. As proposals are made, they can be tested by this criterion: are they contributory steps in the right direction.

The Master Plan provides a guide for the intelligent investment of both public and private funds.

The Planning Commission is the official agency delegated to develop a sound community plan. The five members are appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by Council. The term of office of each member is five years.

The Commission is assisted by an Advisory Council, representative of the city's component parts. The Commission also invites advice from those most intimately connected with a proposal, both proponents and opponents.

The Planning Commission has adopted and followed two sound principles. First, that the interests of the community at large shall have preference over the interest of an individual or group within it — although the rights of minorities shall be considered. Second, that national or state politics shall not be allowed to influence decisions.

Technical Help

The Planning Commission sought competent technical assistance (and) Community Planning Associates was selected. A contract was entered into specifying in detail the work to be done, schedule of interim reports and methods of paying fees.

It should be noted that the compensation to the professional planners will be subsidized in part from state and federal funds.

Thus far, we have made an inventory of Monessen as it is; that is the starting point. We have come to some preliminary conclusions of immediate goals and are laying foundations for future plans.

The community cannot stand still. Neither can the Planning Commission. We expect a continuing better Monessen; we expect a continuingly active Commission. Little progress can be made by merely attempting to repair evils; our great hope is in developing what is good.

As additional studies are completed and preliminary conclusions of immediate goals are reached, they will be the subject of comments by the Commission at various times.

Items of general interest will be published periodically in The Daily Independent. The advice of the Advisory Group will be sought and public hearings held before major proposals are included in the Commission's report to City Council.

We are anticipating a busy time in the next few months. We solicit your thoughtful interest for a better Monessen. The Commission is grateful to Rotary for the opportunity of making this first progress report.

Three Types of Educational TV

Three kinds of educational television are beamed into schoolrooms or living rooms:

1. Closed circuit, which travels on cables, "piping" live or filmed programs to classrooms within a building, or, as planned in Hagerstown, Md., to a whole school system.

2. Open-circuit non-commercial, licensed for educational purposes, as in the pioneer Pittsburgh station WQED.

3. Open-circuit commercial broadcast by regular commercial stations. This too may be beamed to classrooms or public.

Area Breweries Next on List

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Negotiators for the United Brewery Workers, armed with an agreement with the Duquesne and Pittsburgh brewing companies, turned their attention today to three smaller firms in Western Pennsylvania.

An agreement with the district's top beer makers was reached Tuesday and will be voted on Sunday morning by 1,500 workers. Terms were withheld pending the ratification vote.

George J. Schafer, counsel for the union, said talks would now begin with the Latrobe, Fort Pitt and Jones brewing companies. These companies usually follow the lead set by Duquesne and Pittsburgh.

Most District Schools to Open Sept. 3

South Huntingdon Twp. Will Begin Next Monday Morning

The doors of most schools in the Monessen area will swing open for the start of the 1957-58 term on Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Schools in the South Huntingdon Twp. District, however, will open next Monday.

LITTLE IVY LEAGUE — When Billie Janes starts to kindergarten, he will don an Ivy League outfit copied from his college-bound brother. The washable nylon and wool slacks are worn with a white shirt and washable orlon blazer sweater in red and gray stripe.

A survey by The Daily Independent revealed that over 17,000 students will be enrolled in various schools in the Monessen area this term.

Of the nine school districts surveyed, Monessen will have the highest enrollment — 3,202 students, an increase of about 160 over last year.

Charleroi, Monongahela and Donora expect a decrease in enrollment because of the current erection of a sprawling Catholic High School in Carroll Twp. that will serve students in the Charleroi-Monongahela-Donora area.

Add Ninth Grade

Although the Catholic High School is not expected to be ready until the start of the 1958-59 term, Catholic parochial schools in the area have added ninth grades for the 1957-58 term. This move will enable a sophomore class to move directly into the new high school.

A spokesman for the Charleroi School District said it is "too early to tell just how many students we will lose because of the adding of a ninth grade by the Catholic schools."

Charleroi School District is anticipating an enrollment of 2,200; Donora, 1,800, and Monongahela, 2,280.

About 2,400 students are expected to be enrolled in the Bellmarette District, which includes Bellmar High School, North Belle Vernon elementary school, Vernon elementary school, Fairhope elementary school and Fayette City elementary school.

Other Enrollments

The Perry-Lower Tyrone District expects some 1,460 pupils to occupy seats this school term. The district includes Perryopolis and Lower Tyrone schools, Star Junction elementary school, Harry J. Brownfield school and the kindergarten at Whitsett.

Expected enrollments in other school districts are:

West Newton, including Smithton and Sutersville — 1,000.

Rostraver Twp. — 2,100.

South Huntingdon Twp. — 1,400.

Figures were not available for Catholic elementary schools in the area. However, most officials in these schools said they expect about the same enrollments as last year.

Parochial schools to open Sept 3 include St. Leonard, Holy Name, and St Hyacinth, of Monessen, and St. Sebastian in Belle Vernon

Leader Calls Eastern Drought Situation Grave

HARRISBURG, (UP) — Gov George M. Leader, back at his desk today after a personal inspection of four drought stricken southeastern Pennsylvania counties, said the situation was "grave, even worse than I had feared."

The governor viewed seared pasture lands and corn fields Monday in a one-day automobile tour through Berks, Chester, Montgomery and Bucks counties The four counties have already taken initial steps toward requesting federal aid as a disaster area.

Farmers complained the drought had turned lush pastures into brown stubble and estimated corn fields would yield less than one-half of last year's crop. The governor's party said in some pastures cattle were eating leaves off trees and numerous corn fields were a total loss.

C. Paul Lied, who farms 160 acres near Reading, told Gov. Leader the drought was the worst he had experienced in nearly 60 years in Berks County. He said farmers had not received a soaking rain since mid-June

Other farmers related estimates of tomatoe yields being down 60 per cent, bean crops destroyed and potatoes "the size of marbles.

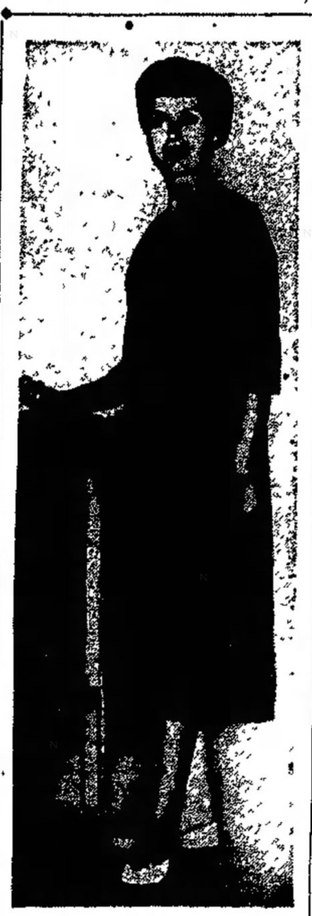
Britain to Keep Test Base Ready

LONDON (UP)—Official sources said today Britain is re-activating its Christmas Island hydrogen bomb base so new thermonuclear tests can be carried out on "short notice" if needed

There are no immediate plans for further nuclear explosions at the mid-Pacific testing area, the sources said But Christmas Island will be kept in readiness.

A large number of British engineer troops are now being airlifted to Christmas Island to put the big air base and its complex scientific facilities back in working order.

The expense and manpower drain of such a global troop movement made it appear Britain has given up hope that a disarmament agreement will be reached at the London arms cut conference.



'PUT-OVER' — New fashion story on the campus this fall will be Bev Dickerson's "put-over" look in bold plaid. Her deeply V'd overblouse tops a skirt of unpressed pleats.

Youths in Romania

LONDON (UP) — Bucharest Radio reported today that 37 delegates to the recent Moscow Youth Festival from the United States, Latin America and the Middle East were touring Romania as guests of the Communist Party. The broadcast gave no names or breakdown of numbers from each country.

Stress Health Check For All Students

You child's good health is of the utmost importance, not only to his sense of well-being, but also in order for him to be scholastically and socially adjusted in school.

There are many things you as a parent can do to keep him in top notch physical condition. The most important, of course, is to see he has a thorough examination by an optometrist or ophthalmologist, doctor and dentist.

His ears, throat, sinuses, tonsils, heart and other organs should all be examined before school commences so that if any corrections are necessary, he won't miss school.

The dentist will not only examine and correct any matters of decay or malocclusion, he will help explain to your child the importance of keeping his teeth clean and how to brush.

One survey showed that ¼ to ½ of the school population need visual correction Don't wait until your child complains of his eyes before you have them checked. A child generally doesn't realize he is not seeing well. You can encourage him to wear his glasses, if that becomes a problem, by selecting frames to match yours or by pointing out that glasses are fashionable — even movie stars wear them.

See that your child has shots for smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough and polio. Booster shots are usually needed about every 2 years

You can further help to safeguard your child's health by seeing that he follows a proper diet, gets plenty of rest, fresh air and exercise.

Now is a good time, for the whole family's safety, to clean out the medicine chest, too. Throw away unlabeled bottles, old drugs and prescriptions.

The chest should include: absorbent cotton, bandage, gauze squares, adhesive tape, burn and bruise ointments, aspirin, baking soda, eyewash, cough remedy, thermometer, salve for temporary muscle aches, rubbing alcohol and calamine lotion.

Anytime your child appears to be having trouble with his school work or classmates, consider his health and have it checked. He may be having trouble hearing or seeing, or he may be tired and times a child who seems to have a mental problem actually has a physical impairment.

Need Stricter Inspection on Dinner Poultry

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —Poultry destined for the dinner table needs stricter mandatory inspection by public health agents, a veterinarian and a women's club representative said here today.

Dr. Joseph Atkinson, consultant on poultry inspection to the U.S. Public Health Service, and Miss Sally Butler, legislative consultant to the General Federation of Women's Clubs, discussed poultry inspection at a special session of the Sixth Annual State Health Conference

Miss Butler called for the same type of inspection for poultry as is now made of meat. Dr. Atkinson urged effective state and local poultry inspection programs to supplement federal programs.

Both speakers stressed that while poultry is one of the major items of food consumed by Americans, there is no uniform system of inspecting poultry before and after processing and at poultry processing plants.

Headstone for Unknown Child

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The Potters Field grave of an unidentified boy found slain in Philadelphia last February soon will have a headstone, thanks to efforts by members of the homicide squad.

The city law department Monday announced they had approved plans for placing the marker on the grave. Capt. David H. Roberts head of the homicide squad, said the stone will be purchased out of $150 burial fund contributed by detectives and public donors.

The boy's body was found crammed in a cardboard box in a field in the Fox Chase section of the city. He was buried on July 24 at a cemetery in Holmesburg.

Septic Tank Outmoded

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP)—Individual septic tanks in suburban housing areas soon will be as outmoded as outhouses, a state sanitary engineer said today.

Arthur F. Lehmann, chief of the Pennsylvania Health Department's sewerage section, said "we are entering a new era of sanitation" which will see the end of septic tanks. Meanwhile, he said, the rapid postwar growth of housing developments far from urban sewerage facilities has made the problem of sewage disposal a major headache for community officials.

Lehmann addressed a group of environmental health workers at the sixth annual state Health Conference.

"Many housing developments have insanitary conditions caused by failure of the soil to absorb the sewage from tile fields," Lehmann said. "The result has been sewage standing in back yards or spreading to neighboring property, and the discharge of sewage to streets, ditches and streams."

Lehmann urged early planning of sewerage needs by developers before sites are purchasd for housing subdivisions, schools, industrial plants and commrcial establishments.

Boston Attorney Gets SEC Post

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today named Edward N. Gadsby, Boston attorney, as chairman of the Securities & Exchange Commission. Gadsby had been sworn in as a member of the SEC only a few minutes earlier.

Gadsby succeeds J. Sinclair Armstrong, who has become assistant secretary of the Navy.

Citizens' Groups Can Help

What can you do to improve the schools?

That's a question which has a different answer in every community. But here are some general suggestions from the National Citizens Council for Better Schools:

Help organize a local citizens' school committee.

Ask your board of education what jobs they have for citizens.

Join school improvement groups such as the PTA, citizens' groups and education committees of clubs.

Find the facts before you find the fault with the schools.

Plan with neighbors to hold a community conference on school problems.

Survey the school situation in town to forecast conditions and needs for the years ahead.

The council is the outgrowth of an organization started in 1949 to get action on school problems. It estimates there are more than 12,000 citizens' school improvement committees the country over, and state citizens' committees in 36 states.

STILL A FAVORITE — All-time favorite of the high school set is this combination worn by Claudia Jordan. It includes a reversible pleatid skirt of washable orlon and wool, a white tailored shirt of pure silk and a gray cashmere sweater to match the skirt.

TRENTO, Italy (UP)— Fourteen mountain climbers were killed, six injured and six reported missing on the Italian Alps this month, a survey showed today.

Make Pleas for Fight Against Discrimination

MINNEAPOLIS, Min. (UP)—A Lutheran educator and theologian today pleaded for Christians to fight racial discrimination throughout the world.

Dr. Edgar M. Carlson, president of Gustavus Adolphus College, St. Peter, Minn., told the third assembly of the Lutheran World Federation that the problem of race relations confronts modern Christians with a special urgency.

"There can be no basis in faith or in fact for any assumption of superiority on the part of any of God's children," Dr. Carlson said.

The college president said Christians in the United States have reason to be "proud and grateful for the patience and good judgment which has generally characterized the reaction of the Negro people to the decision of the Supreme Court in behalf of equality."

"We also have reason for embarrassment and shame that certain elements among the white race have not demonstrated equal qualities of character and citizenship," he said.

Erie Diocese to Build High Schools

ERIE, Pa. (UP) — The Erie Catholic Diocese plans to build new high schools in nine northwestern Pennsylvania communities.

Discount Rumors Of Breach by U. S., Britain

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The Rt. Hon. Sir Cullum Welch, Lord Mayor of London, Monday night discounted rumors of a breach in the friendship of the United States and Great Britain.

Sir Cullum, speaking at a dinner given him by a local chapter of the Variety Club International, termed the rumors as "bunk."

"There is no crack in the wall of friendship between the United States and Great Britain," he said. "The two democratic nations have proved themselves friends over the years and I am sure that the friendship will continue."

The mayor was presented with a plaque for outstanding humanitarian efforts on behalf of the blind in London.

Earlier he presented Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth with a silver loving cup and in turn received a colored engraving of Independence Hall.

Plan Hearing In Redevelopment

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission will hear argument Sept. 24 on the city of Pittsburgh's protested plans to relocate Wylie Ave. as part of the Lower Hill redevelopment program.

The hearing was scheduled for 10 a.m. e.d.t. at the commission's main hearing room.

Objections to the city's proposal to change the course of the street in connection with construction of the Crosstown Blvd. were raised by Pittsburgh Railways Co.

The firm contends the city should pay an estimated $200,000 to relocate its tracks on Wylie, but the city insists it will not assume any of the cost.

Solutions Proposed for Problem of Religion In the Public Schools

(This is the second of two special reports by the United Press on the growing national controversy over the place of religion in the public schools.)

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP) — Four different solutions are being proposed to the problem of how to handle religion in the public schools.

One is for the schools to proclaim a strict "hands off" policy and leave the entire job of religious training to the home and the church.

This solution has many adherents among Jews and other minority groups, including humanists and atheists. They fear that their beliefs will be ignored or distorted in any public school treatment of religion, and that their children may be branded as "different."

Protestants and Catholics reply that if the schools try to ignore religion, they will in effect discriminate against the majority of Americans who do believe in God. The silence of the schools, they contend, would inevitably be interpreted by children as evidence that religion is unworthy of study, a matter of no real importance.

At the opposite extreme is the solution urged by some fundamentalist Protestants and Catholics. It is to revise the Constitution, or at least the present interpretation of the Constitution by the Supreme Court, to let public schools teach Christian religious doctrines in the same positive and forthright way that they teach the political doctrines of democracy.

What Opponents Say

Opponents of this proposal say it would destroy the "wall of separation between church and state" which the founding fathers erected, and ultimately would mean the end of religious liberty in America.

A third solution, which many public schools have found attractive, is to teach a "common core" of religious beliefs held by all of the major faiths. This approach was tried recently in the New York City school system.

In June, 1955, the board of superintendents issued a policy statement calling on public schools to "reinforce the program of the home and church in strengthening belief in God." Without getting into any specific formulation of doctrine, the statement said teachers should seize every opportunity in their regular courses to "identify God as the ultimate source of natural and moral law."

The New York Catholic Archdiocese and some Protestant leaders endorsed the statement. But every rabbi in the city denounced it, and the superintendents hastily withdrew it.

Might Work Elsewhere

The new policy statement, adopted last fall, omits all reference to God and deals mainly in platitudes about the desirability of developing "good character in our children."

Some educators believed that a "common core" program of religious instruction might be more easily worked out in communities with less religious diversity than New York. But opponents say that there would still be two serious objections to this solution: It would violate the rights of the minority who do not subscribe to the Judeo-Christian concept of God; and at best it would be a "lowest common denominator" of faith, and a very thin soup to set before children.

The fourth solution, which has won the backing of many leading educators and which is now actually being tried in the public schools of Indianapolis, Ind., and a few other cities, is the factual study of religion.

Gets Many Endorsements

This calls for public schools to treat religion just as they treat politics and economies—as a subject which is "controversial" but which is so important to an understanding of American history and culture that it must be included in any educational curriculum worthy of the name.

It has been endorsed by the committee on religion and education of the American Council of Education, the educational policies commission of the National Education Assn., and the general board of the National Council of Churches, as well as by a large number of individual school superintendents and clergymen.

They assert that the constitutional ban on sectarian teaching of religion does not prevent objective teaching about religion. They are satisfied that the public schools, which have learned to handle so many other delicate subjects from sex to Communism, can find a way to deal fairly and intelligently with religion if they try.

May Take Time

It may take a great many years for this concept to percolate through the vast U.S. school system, but a start has already been made. This summer, the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education sponsored special training courses at 15 universities for public school teachers seeking professional guidance in the "factual study" approach to religion.

Indianapolis public schools will soon begin their second year of "teaching about religion" as a natural part of their regular courses in history, literature and social studies.

William A. Evans, assistant to the general superintendent of Indianapolis schools, told the United Press the experiment has won "almost unanimous" endorsement of parents and religious groups in the city. The relatively few complaints, he said, have concerned details rather than the basic idea.

"This approach to the problem is sound," said Evans. "I don't see any reason why it would not work everywhere if the public is made fully aware of its purpose."

One of the Bunch

EAU CLAIRE, Mich. (UP) — You never can tell where you'll find a pet. Charles Marquis found one with a bunch of bananas shipped to his father's grocery from Central America. He promptly put it in a glass jug and feeds it raw hamburger. The pet is a tarantula.

HELP FOR MOTHER — Mother will like the petitpoint print dress Debby Janes will wear when she enters third grade, because the material is drip-dry and requires little or no ironing. The high, round neckline and hem of the full skirt are trimmed in rickrack.

Ship Visits Port

BARI, Italy (UP)—A Japanese ship has entered this Italian Adriatic port for the first time in 33 years, port officials said today. The vessel was the fishing boat Hokomaru from Tokyo. It was returning from an expedition in the South African seas and unloaded several tons of fish here.

Queen Is Causing Big Stir

By PATRICIA WIGGINS

WASHINGTON (UP) —"I would like very much to be invited to the garden party for Queen Elizabeth..."

"Enclosed please find check for two tickets to the Maryland-North Carolina football game. If possible, please give me two as near to the Queen as possible."

These are samples of the hundreds of letters, bolstered by as many telephone calls, pouring into the British Embassy and the University of Maryland these days, two months before England's royalty steps foot on American soil.

Presidents, senators, ambassadors we've got. But, in the words of one observer, "there's something about the Queen of England."

The enthusiasm (that's a British understatement) being shown over the October visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip has amazed even those who were around for the traffic tie-ups and mob scenes that marked the 1939 visit of the late King George and his Queen (the present Queen Mother Elizabeth) and the brief 1951 visit of then Princess Elizabeth and her handsome consort.

No Names Mentioned

The British Embassy is too diplomatic to give any names or details on the letters seeking invitations to the garden party which will be given Oct. 18 by the Commonwealth countries. But the writers suggest all kinds of reasons why they should be invited—from an ancestor in common with the Queen to a distant relative who happens to live in London.

The Commonwealth hosts hope to hold the guest list down to "about 2,000." Even then, the handsome embassy lawn may look more like the football game slated for the following day. One big difference will be a gay canopy covering the traditional strawberries and cream buffet and an outdoor bar offering drinks from fruit juice to champagne.

At Maryland University, officials are in a happy daze over zooming ticket sales and have quickly put Buckinham Palace on their mailing list.

The Queen and Prince Philip will receive with other fans a handsome pre-season souvenir schedule of Maryland football games and the team line-up. The booklet was snatched out of the printer's hands when the royal football date was announced so that a full-page picture of the Queen could be added.

Overflow Crowd Expected

The university plans to rent temporary stands to add 15,000 seats to the 35,000-capacity stadium. The only other times that many fans have been squeezed into the field was for one big game with UCLA and two games with Navy.

Has royalty ever attended a Maryland game before? "Not a one," said a happy public relations officer. "Not even a president."

Titilating university officials are reports that Prince Philip has indicated a wish to get down onto the field itself. Could he possibly want to kick the pigskin? They'll be ready if he does. And Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin has been well briefed to be ready to explain all the intricacies of the game to his royal guests.

The university is awaiting word as to where the Queen desires to sit during the game. But its own suggestion is for a specially built box right on the 50-yard line.

TORM SECURE — Pre-teener 'eter Jacques will arrive at school n the first stormy day wearing his jacket of washable, spot-resistant cotton twill. Both jacket nd hood are lined with orlon le.

Educational Programs Set on Television For New School Year

All the television networks present a wide range of informational material in the course of their programming, but commercial TV has never undertaken academic services for specialized audiences.

There are 25 non-commercial educational TV stations today specially licensed for the purpose of providing this most useful service. Many of these stations operate under severe financial handicap despite generous support by foundations and civic groups.

This year, something concrete is being done for educational TV: helping provide added programming for these non-commercial stations and connecting them together into a live service using a network line. With the programming talent and facilities available to the network, this plan can make a substantial contribution to educational TV.

In brief, the plan provides that during 1957, regularly scheduled half-hour educational programs will be furnished live over the network's lines — five days a week, in the early evening, to the nation's non-commercial educational television stations.

The programs are being supplied without cost and kinescopes are being made available on a delayed basis to the network's stations in cities where no educational station exists.

Part of the programs have already been telecast, but the series will resume in October for 13 additional weeks. At this time, a check of the television programming locally will give the time and channel.

State Highways Dept. Plans to Reorganize Team

HARRISBURG, (UP)—The state Highways Department disclosed today it is reorganizing its field maintenance force to increase efficiency of road maintenance by up to 50 per cent.

The department said instead of caretakers in charge of four men and a pickup truck, county maintenance superintendents will assign foremen in charge of 10 or more workers equipped with whatever vehicles and tools are necessary to do the job.

Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler said the revised system already is effect in 11 counties. He said it will cut the maintenance supervisory force by more than 50 per cent, from 1,723 to 848. The outmoded system required 1,323 caretakers, he said.

The new system is now operating in Butler, Erie, Lebanon, Wayne, Northampton, Bedford, Clearfield, Huntingdon, Perry, Lycoming and York counties.

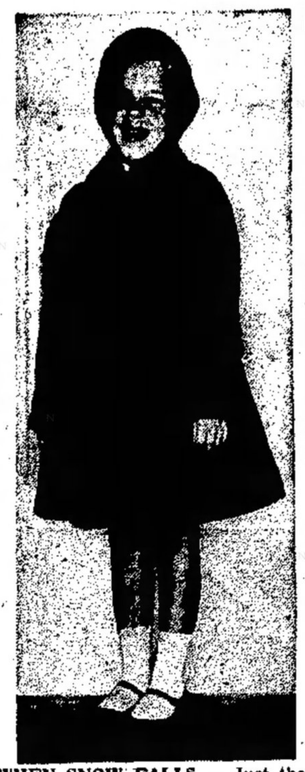
Lawler said the total number of maintenance workers, about 11,000, will be unchanged.

Knight to Run In California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UP)—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight will be a candidate for re-election as governor of California in 1958.

Knight formally announced his intention to run Monday admitting it came as a surprise to no one. He is a Republican.

The chances are his opponent will be Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.). The Senate minority leader has said he will not run for re-election as senator, although he has not directly stated he will run for governor.



WHEN SNOW FALLS — Just the thing for the little elementary school pupil when the snow begins to fall is this black and white tweed coat with matching helmet cap. The flared skirt falls from a high waist.

Has Plenty of Time to Dream Of Big Car

PORTSMOUTH, England (UP)—Alan Haines, 24, spent his jail sentence dreaming of a big new car and of having plenty of pocket money.

So when he was released he set to work to make the dream a reality. He got a job and his employer gave him a $56 advance.

He used this as a deposit on a $187.60 motorcycle.

Then he used the $187.60 motorcycle as a deposit on a $361.20 motorcycle.

Then he used the $361.20 motorcycle as a deposit on a $683.20 car.

Then he swapped the $683.20 car in on a bigger one worth $850.

Then he took the $850 car and swapped it for a cheaper one and pocketed the $70 difference for spending money.

He was back in jail today awaiting sentence and dreaming of being free again with a big car and plenty of spending money.

State Gets 20 Days to Prove Fanny Claims

PITTSBURGH (UP)— An Allegheny County judge today gave the State 20 days to prove its claims that Fickle Fanny, the Clinton County gas well which produced a million dollar bonanza, was drilled on state land.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Leonard Mendelson asked 60 days to prepare evidence, but Judge Henry Ellenbogen refused such a lengthy period. Ellenbogen also ruled that the state's evidence must be supplied to opposing counsel within six days.

Distribution of the well's earnings was scheduled to begin early this month. Then the State announced it was contesting the ownership.

Fickle Fanny blew in seven years ago. Its ownership has been contested in state courts almost from the start, with the result that virtually all of its earnings have been held in escrow.

Hard Sell

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Hiroteru Nakanishi, a Japanese stowaway who jumped ship here, believes you don't have to say a word to sell automobiles. Nakanishi, a car salesman in Tokyo, can't speak a word of English but explained to immigration authorities he figured all he had to do was slap the cars with his hand and point out their various features.

'Other Grandparents' Live Quiet Life in Florida Town

GAINESVILLE, Fla., (UP) — Four of the world's most celebrated grandchildren slip in and out of this college town once or twice a year for visits with a middle-aged couple who never make the headlines—the "other grandparents."

Col. and Mrs. Percy Thompson, whose daughter Barbara is the wife of Maj. John Eisenhower, center their life here in their large (four bed-rooms and four baths) home, the University of Florida Law School and the university's symphony orchestra.

This is, of course, when David, Ann, Susan and tiny Mary Jean are not paying "grandma and grandpa" a visit. The last time the young grandchildren of President and Mrs. Eisenhower were here coincided with the President's trip to nearby Jacksonville and Mayport, from where he boarded an aircraft carrier for a one-day cruise in June.

At that time, Barbara moved the family down in two "shifts," Mrs. Thompson explained. She said Barbara first brought Susan and Mary Jean down and "left them with us so she could return to Washington to pickup the other two children and John. They all spent a few days with us before John left to take the cruise with his father."

In Final Year

Colonel Thompson at 58 is in his final year at the University of Florida Law School.

"I can't honestly say whether he will want to practice law when he's through," Mrs. Thompson said, "but he's interested in law—that's why he's taking the course."

She said he's "still much too young and active to stay retired."

Thompson retired from active duty in 1955 after 30 years Army service which was interrupted after World War I long enough to get his college education and an ROTC commission at Purdue.

The Thompsons bought their Gainesville home during World War II, then Mrs. Thompson "returned to live here every time my husband went overseas or to war."

While's he is studying law, Mrs. Thompson keeps busy "keeping house, cooking, sewing and playing the violin in the university symphony orchestra."

She said that most of the colonel's nights are spent "burning the midnight oil" over his lawbooks. While he's hard at his studies, Mrs. Thompson spends at least two evenings a week at orchestra practice.

No Social Life

"We've just been too busy to pay much attention to so-called 'club life'," she said. "We don't belong to any social clubs, and we spend most of our time either studying, playing bridge of just visiting with our friends."

The Thompsons live alone in their English tudor home, leaving much of it closed off "unless we have company," Mrs. Thompson, consequently, does all her own house work and cooking without the aid of any servants.

In addition to Barbara they have one other daughter, who is married to a McKinney, Tex., radiologist, and two married sons, both of whom continued the Thompson military tradition. One is a second lieutenant in the Army, while the other is a captain in the Air Force.

Like Barbara's famous in-laws, the Thompson's are Republicans; but Mrs. Thompson said the two sets of grandparents are different in one respect:

"The colonel doesn't play much golf...just ifs ome guests want to play and can't find anyone else to play with. He hasn't the time."

Oil was formed over eons of time from tiny marine organisms and decayed plant matter which settled to the bottom of prehistoric seas.

Places where deer and other wild animals come to lick salt at out-croppings from the earth are called "licks."

Ham in Touch with 18 at South Pole

By DICK GROWALD

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP)—Ice, ice everywhere, but it might as well be parched land as far as drinking water is concerned for 18 Americans making scientific studies at the bottom of the world.

The sailors of Operation Deep Freeze have to tunnel through the ice to reach fresh clean snow which they melt for drinking water, a ham radio operator here in contact with the expedition said today.

The warmest outside work is in the snow. It's usually a relatively warm 60 degrees below zero. The average South Polar temperature last month was 80 below. "An hour is about the longest period we can stay outside," Lt. Jack Tuck of Auburn, Mass., commanding the Navy's Antarctic international geophysical year station, reported by radio.

Disdains Sleep

The story of the frigid life at the South Pole filtered 9,000 miles to the $10,000 amateur radio station of ham Paul M. Blum, a man who disdains sleep is "mere habit." Blum's radio is the only link the polar crew has to the warmer world other than official Navy communication.

Through Blum's radio came Tuck's baritone describing the warmest day of the past month as a "balmy 41 degrees below zero." The weathered - in crew takes a Texan's pride in a recent 98-below zero reading.

Blum, a senior buyer for the General Electric Co. during the day, uses the night to funnel messages to and from the pole and six other Antarctic naval stations. Blum and four friends handled their 10,000th message this week.

After three hours' sleep Blum rises at midnight, steps into his cellar radio room and sits down.

Pole Flickers In

After jiggling a panel of dials and knobs Blum switches on the microphone, glances at the chunk of polar rock atop the set and chants into the universe, "W2KCR calling KC4USN." The coldest spot on earth flickers in.

"Hello, Paul," says KC4USN.

Blum, shuttling between the radio, a teletype machine and a facsimile machine for sending photographs to the pole, begins his seven-hour vigil. First he copies messages from Antarctica for the folks back home.

"I'm thinking of staying another year...I feel great...I can't sleep very well...tell everyone hello...tell Myra to learn shorthand...happy birthday..."

Then he reads to the polar operator the short messages, gathered by the Red Cross, which invariably contain the word "love."

Low Down On Social Life

"Some of the boys down there talked a Russian scientist into giving us a message for transmission to Russia," Blum said. "After I sent it through the Red Cross to Russia we got a reply."

Through Blum's radio have come the story of polar social life: Three nights a week movies. Two weekly lectures on medicine. Old Antarctic hand Dr. Paul Siple talks three nights a week on his favorite subject, Antarctica.

Some sailors spend spare time studying for advancement in rank. Nearly all the polar crew are camera bugs. "They tell me they've a million pictures of the stars," Blum said.

The photo fans work under handicaps. "I went outside today to take a photograph," radioed sailor Bill McPherson of Long Meadow, R.I. "My camera froze and a finger froze to the shutter. But I got my picture."

Kenaf, a fiber which can be grown in the U. S. and Latin America, is being developed as a substitute for jute.

DERBY WINNER — Terry Townsend, 14, of Anderson, Ind., was the happiest boy in the country as he posed with the trophy after winning the 20th All-American Soap Box Derby before 70,000 in Akron. He also won a $5,000 scholarship.

Adenauer's Hopes Brighter After Savage Attack by Russian Boss

BERLIN (UP) — Election prospects looked brighter today for West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer as a result of the savage attack made on him by Soviet Communist Leader Nikita Khrushchev.

Western observers, who heard Khrushchev lambast Adenauer during his recent East German tour, believe the attacks—which ranged from comparing Adenauer with Adolf Hitler to warning that he was leading Germany along the road to war — have virtually clinched the September 15 elections in Adenauer's favor.

They believe the attacks, couched in some of the strongest language one head of state has ever used in criticizing another, will boomerang in Adenauer's favor among the West German electorate.

There is a school of thought which believes this was exactly what the Soviets intended, as they are unwilling at the moment to negotiate with a Socialist government over the reunification of Germany.

Red Stand Clear

The Soviet leaders made it clear during their seven-day East German tour August 7-14 that they are determined to maintain the division of Germany and to back the east zone satellite state with all their power.

Their eventual aim is the takeover of all Germany and its incorporation into the east bloc.

In the meantime, attacks on Adenauer as a "warmonger" and imperialist tool" enable the Soviets to claim that it is impossible to negotiate with him, and thereby to perpetuate the status quo until they are ready to make their next move.

Even before Khurshchev lashed out at Adenauer, the election balance had swung in his favor.

Most political experts believe that Adenauer will be returned for his third successive term since 1949, although perhaps with a reduced majority.

Holds Absolute Majority

At present, Adenauer's Christian Democrat Party holds an absolute majority in the Bundestag (lower house) with 253 seats, compared to 153 Socialists, 37 Free Democrats, 19 Refugee Party and three independents.

In the September election, at least 494 seats will be contested, exactly half of them by direct election in the 247 constituencies. The remainder will be settled by proportional representation.

Victory for the 82-year-old chancellor will give him 12 straight years in office — if he completes the four - year term.

This has been one of the main election arguments by the opposition Socialists, who claim that 12 years is too long for any one man to govern the country. Their theme is "It's time for a change."

They also say his election will end all hope of German reunification, and expose Western Germany to a further period of cold war.

In reply, Adenauer has turned his big guns on the Socialists, virtually ignoring the smaller parties, and has warned in several major campaign speeches that their victory in the elections would mean the "downfall of Germany."

Attacks Socialist Promises

He has attacked Socialist promises that they would "re-examine" West Germany's membership in the NATO pact, and warned bluntly that a Socialist government would take the country down the road to Communism.

Most of the campaign so far has been fought on foreign policy issues, all of them revolving around the reunification problem.

The Socialists, led by Erich Ollenhauer, say that only a new, flexible approach—envisaging the possible withdrawal of West Germany from NATO and the negotiation of a European security pact—can hope to wring concessions from the Russians.

Adenauer, in reply, says that only West Germany's alliances with the Western powers save it from falling into Soviet hands, and that eventually the Soviets will be forced by their own internal problems to relax their grip on the east zone.

At present, as far as foreign observers can predict, most West Germans appear to agree with "Der Alte" (the old one), as the chancellor is known.

Warn Against Duty

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Tariff Commission has advised President Eisenhower against increasing the duty on foreign-made bicycles. Bicycles formerly had a 30 per cent duty on wholesale value but substantial reductions were made in a series of trade agreements with foreign countries.

A GAMBLING CASINO MUSEUM

ALTHOUGH HAROLD'S CLUB, in Reno, Nev., is best known as a gambling casino, the second floor of the building houses an extraordinary museum of the old west. Known as "Roaring Camp," it contains a collection of ancient firearms. Many of them are valuable as rare models or for the historical events in which they were used. The same museum holds collections of old mining camp music boxes, unusual carriages, Indian weapons and souvenirs from battlefields. Many of the incidents in the west are told and illustrated along with actual guns.

Thousands of weapons line the walls in Harold's club.

Television Quiz Show Featured At Libel Trial

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Defense counsel in the Confidential Magazine libel trial indicated they would switch today from mischief in movieland to alleged hi-jinks on a popular television quiz show.

Attorney Arthur J. Crowley was expected to attempt to prove the magazine reported the truth in an article, "What happened 24 hours after Hal March asked the $64,000 question nobody could answer?"

Crowley hunted John Odom, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of Georgia, would be his next witness.

Odom blasted the $64,000 show in the September issue of Confidential. He charged in the article that the program was a "gyp, silly, cuckoo and impossible."

The change of pace was indicated after an attractive 33-year-old adopted daughter of movie director testified she took an active part in an alleged nude swimming pool party at the home of actor John Carroll.

Gloria Wellman, daughter of Director William Wellman, testified Tuesday that she supplied Confidentinl Magazine with the material for the story, "It was John Carroll's party—but no John."

The story was one of a dozen lurid articles on which the state based its criminal libel charge.

Raps Policies Of State Forests And Water Dept.

HARRISBURG, (UP) — A top Republican leader of the recently adjourned Legislature today rapped policies of the Forests and Waters Department in administration of the state park system.

Republican House Leader Albert W. Johnson charged that the department is shutting down parks for "lack of funds" while at the same time "trying to outbid private citizens for additional lands."

Johnson cited reports that Shewnee Park in Bedford County would be closed immediately after Labor Day because budget for its operation was cut $10,400 by the department.

"Then up in Sullivan County, agents of the department forced up the bidding on 3,000 acres of the Ricketts Estate on North Mountain from $101,000 to $130,000 in an effort to prevent a group of local citizens from buying it and converting it into a resort area," Johnson said.

"Obviously if the department has $125,000—its final bid for the Ricketts Estate lands—to spend on land...it has the $10,400 to keep one of the most popular parks in the state operating the year round."

Milk Strike Ends In New York

NEW YORK (UP)—The milk strike in the New York metropolitan area ended early today, averting the threat of a shortage for 12 million consumers.

Milk from dairy farms began moving into the area immediately after both sides reached a settlement, Harry Uviller, chairman of the State Mediation Board, said.

Uviller said the settlement terms "more or less meet the union demands."

He said the Dairy Transport Association agreed to give truck drivers a 70-cent an hour package increase over a three year period.

Officials of the association and of Teamsters Local 770 met Tuesday night and reached the agreement about 3 a.m. e.d.t.

New Kensington Youths Given Jail Sentences

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP) — Three young men from New Kensington pleaded guilty today to holding up a Vandergrift, Pa., motorist and leaving him stranded on Route 356 last January.

Judge John M. O'Connell of Westmoreland County imposed sentences of 6-12 months on George Hageal, Joseph George and Louis Roditis after several New Kensington businessmen, police and public officials appeared to vouch for their previous good character.

The three, charged with armed robbery and assault with intent to rob, forced George Arnal, Vandergrift, to drive his car to an isolated spot outside Vandergrift. The holdupmen, who wore rubber masks and carried revolvers, then took the keys to the victim's car and left him along the road.

Arnal testified he was not mistreated by the men. New Kensington police Capt. George Bordonaro and city Councilman Joseph Krupa were among those appearing as character witnesses. None of the three had previous police records.

Flu Tests Under Way

WASHINGTON (UP) — The armed forces, aiming at holding the nation's defenses intact during an expected Oriental flu epidemic this winter, are testing volunteers to see if key personnel will need a double vaccine shot to guarantee immunity.

The Public Health Service so far has recommended only one shot for all civilians, but is studying whether two are needed.

Drug manufacturers are rushing to supply vaccine. The PHS estimates there will be an average of less than one shot for every two civilians in the United States available by mid-winter.

An Army spokesman said a one shot dosage of one cubic centimeter of vaccine will mean only about 70 per cent will be immunized. The armed forces, in their experiment, are trying to determine if this 30 per cent non-immunization gap can be narrowed by extra shots.

Surgeon General Leroy Burney warned Monday night the flu could strike 10 to 20 per cent of the population—up to 34 million Americans—in an explosive outbreak. If the disease hits the West Coast, he said it could sweep to the East Coast in four to six weeks and have a crippling effect on the nation.

Burney said there could be a "terrific" impact if 20 per cent of Washington was laid low with flu and 200,000 workers were taken out of vital government services.

The surgeon general said that it would be "very wise for all people to have inoculations, including those in key government positions."

The highly - contagious disease, already reported to be well-seeded throughout the country, is a mild influenza lasting from four to five days, Burney said. It is characterized by a sore throat, fever, cough and muscle ache and is followed by a weakened condition lasting four or five days.

How to buy "vitamins"

Door-to-door peddlers are around now, selling vitamin preparations and nutritional supplements. The talk is mighty convincing. But, remember, talk won't do a thing for you. There's only one way to be sure of what vitamin you need if any are needed at all. That is to see your family physician. He and he alone is qualified to prescribe for you. Always buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from a registered pharmacist. Then you'll know what you're getting—and you'll get your money's worth.

Aldous Huxley Takes Long Look at Video

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—Author Aldous Huxley, who once took a bleak look at the mechanized "brave new world" of the future, took a look today at a contemporary machine and decided it was transfixing many of its users.

William Ewald

The machine: The television set.

Huxley, 63, thin, shaggy-haired and hawk-beaked, is in Manhattan for an appearance on CBS-TVS "The Last Word" this Sunday. An Englishman who defected to California, Huxley is the author of 10 novels of stinging satire, among them "Brave New World," "Antic Hay" and "Point Counter Point."

He owns no TV set himself, but he is interested in the effect TV is having on some viewers.

"I don't think there's much doubt that in some cases there is a kind of hypnosis going on," said Huxley. "One of the methods of hypnosis, you know, is to have the subject look at a bright light or a moving object. You have him remember some pleasant scene or image.

TV Fills The Bill

"The TV screen supplies that bright moving object and pleasant image and the subject at home falls into a trance. I suppose some people fall into a kind of trance for three hours every night. And I suppose that's why advertisers use TV. They are able to exert a kind of post-hypnotic suggestion upon the viewer."

Huxley has watched some TV shows—at a neighbor's house in California. "I do like some of the things I've seen," he confessed. "I like the political things and I like some of the quiz programs—that little boy with the scientific (Robert Strom) and that other show, "Twenty One."

"That Van Doren fellow, well, I thought he was wonderful and that lawyer woman (Vivienne Nearing), she was wonderful, too."

However, Huxley disregards the bulk of TV fare. He feels that TV's need for a mass audience shackles it.

"It's a difficult thing, this business of trying to hit a common denominator," he said. "It's like firing a shotgun blast into a huge arena.

Shakespeare Did It

"Sometimes, by a sort of miracle you can combine mass appeal with quality — Shakespeare and Goethe did it, for example — but the fact is, Shakespeares and Goethes don't come along very often.

"TV is terribly hard on the writer. Shakespeare would have been exhausted in a year if he were working for TV and were called upon to write a 39-week series. I believe TV would have reduced Shakespeare to insanity."

Nevertheless, Huxley would like a crack at the medium himself. "Nobody has asked me, but I'd be quite willing. It's always interesting to try a new medium. It's a challenge," he said.

"In fact, I plan to buy a TV set. My friends tell me to wait till next year or the year after—that present sets will be obsolete. But you know everything becomes obsolete sooner or later and you can go on forever waiting that way. So, I soon may become a TV owner myself."

Frank Sinatra Remembers Help From Bob Hope

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Frank Sinatra, sitting atop the entertainment world, hasn't forgotten the lean years of the late 40s when he had trouble getting jobs.

The thin crooner isn't bitter about the brushoffs and doubletalk that kept him from working. But he does remember one guy. Fella named Bob Hope who started Frank on the long road back.

"I couldn't get a job until Bob came along with his first television spectacular," the singer grinned.

"That was in 1950, and there weren't many people around like Hope But then I wasn't expecting to find them. If people were frightened of me I couldn't blame 'em.

First Aid Needed if Tot Eats Moth Balls

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Too often moth balls are mistaken for candy by a mischievous child and unsuspectingly it is taken, the results might be fatal.

Many moth balls and more flakes contain naphthalene, a coal tar derivative. Tosic symptoms may be produced by as little as a single moth ball, about .5 of a gram.

The first signs of such poisoning generally are diarrnea, vomiting and development of a fever.

If there is evidence that a moth ball is the source of the trouble, the best thing to do is to make the child vomit right away. In fact, this is a pretty good rule to follow in most cases of poisoning. It's especially essential in the case of moth balls, however, since they are too large to be removed by lavage.

I've told you repeatedly the best method of making a child vomit. But memory of such matters generally is short, so I'll repeat it once more.

Place the youngster over your lap in a spanking position. Then run your index finger along the roof of his mouth and down the back of his throat.

In most instances, this brings quick results.

The next thing to do, of course, is to call the doctor.

Usually, anemia will develop within three to five days after the youngster swallows the poison.

Your doctor can administer packed red blood cells and correct the fluid balance. He can use ACTH or cortisone if it appears that hemolytic anemia might possibly develop.

But unless the kidney has been damaged badly, your youngster can expect to recover.

As in the case of most accidents, it's a lot easier to prevent this from happening than it is to remedy the damage.

Treat moth balls and flakes like any other poison. Keep them well out of the reach of even the most adventursome child.

Sea shells on the beaches and the bottoms of bodies of water are from the animals in the oyster and snail group known as molluska.

Sewer Authority In Monongahela

Monongahela City Council has organized a Municipal Authority to acquire, construct, maintain and operate sewers, sewer systems and sewer treatment works, including work for the treating and disposing of industrial wastes.

Designated as first members of the Board of Authority were:

John F. Campbell, five years; Harry F. Larimer, four years; Dr. Michael Plesher, three years; George F. Roule, two years, and William A. Polaski, one year.

FREED RED PRISONER HOME — Touching American soil for the first time in 10 years, the Rev. John A. Houle, S. J., arrives in San Francisco with his mother, Mrs. John H. Houle (left). At the right is his sister, Mrs. Ruth Henegar. Father Houle, 42, of Glendale, Calif., went to China in 1947 to do missionary work, and was imprisoned by the Chinese Reds on charges of "imperialism" and "ideological sabotage." He was reunited with his mother in Honolulu after being released by the Chinese Reds.

Oman Affair One for International Lawyers

LONDON (UP) — Now that the dust of the desert pocket war has settled, expert authorities here were convinced today that the rights and wrongs of the Oman affair must attract the attention of international lawyers.

The key to the situation, the experts believe, is a treaty signed at the Muscat seaport of Sib in 1920. The British Foreign Office has never published the text, but an unofficial version has been released.

This point was made by H. St. John Philby, a former adviser to the late King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia and a recognized authority on southern Arabian affairs, in a recent letter to the Manchester guardian.

"The vital document governing the situation in Oman is the Treaty of Sib of 1920, the text of which the British government is strangely unwilling to release either to Parliament or to the press. It is apparently treated as a secret document. Why?" Philby asked.

Nature Of Pact

The Foreign Office explanation is that the document signed at Sib in 1920 between the then Sultan of Muscat, the Imam of Oman and the chiefs of the inland tribes in southern Arabia was an "agreement" and not classed as a "treaty."

It is this document which the present Imam of Oman, Ghalib Bin Ali, is reported to have sent to Moscow "for study."

The most authoritative background to the Oman affair, gleaned from people on the spot with whom this correspondent talked in a tour of the troubled area two years ago, was that it really all started in 1913.

It was then that many of the tribes of the Oman hinterland rebelled against their generally recognized ruler, the Sultan of Muscat and elected their own politico-religious leader, the Imam of Oman.

The rebels in 1913 came near to seizing Muscat itself and the situation was saved for the Sultan then by British intervention which, in those days, was the basic power in southern Arabia.

An agreement was then arranged between the Sultan, the Imam and the tribal chiefs.

No Interference Pledged

It was agreed by the Imam and his followers that the Omanis would not interfere with the Sultan's government of Muscat and would not fight against it; that there should be freedom of movement between Muscat coastal districts and the Oman hinterland; that criminals should not be protected and that claims by Muscat against Oman should be heard and settled by law.

On his part, the Sultan of Muscat agreed that there should not be more than a 5 per cent tax on Oman's transit trade to Muscat's seaports; that Omanis should have freedom to move to and from the coastal towns; that criminals should be extradited and that there should be no interference by the Sultan in the internal affairs of Oman.

Experts believed that this agreement did, in effect, establish two separate states — Muscat on the coast and Oman in the interior inhabited by tribes acknowledging the Imam.

But in the British view, there was no frontier between Muscat and Oman and the two areas could not be regarded as clear cut entities.

Successive foreign treaties have recognized Sultan Said Bin Taimur as the ruler of both Muscat and Oman, including a treaty made with India in 1952.

According to expert opinion here the legalities of the case are confused.

It is argued that the Sultan, under the Sib agreement, had no authority to sign away oil rights for the whole of Muscat and Oman —which the Arab leaders on the spot see as the root of all the evil that has beset their domains.

The Sultan's advisers and the British Foreign Office, however, insist that the Sib agreement simply gave Oman a sort of home rule but not total secession from the Sultan's Suzerainty.

This is the situation the Imam of Oman has asked Moscow to study with the Treaty of Sib which has roused all the old fires of Omani resentment against overlordship.

Pet Owners and 'Charlie Wilson' To Fight Edict

WASHINGTON (UP) — An old hound dog named Charles E. Wilson is fighting for the squatting rights of house pets in nearby suburban Maryland.

So are hundreds of other pets including a terrier known to his friends as Pierre.

The directors of the cooperative community of Greenbelt, Md., have ordered all residents to dispose of their dogs, cats and any other conspicuous pet fauna they may have about the house.

The directors said they based their order on a poll of Greenbelt residents. The directors said Greenbelt residents—or at least the 60 per cent who voted—dislike all pets 2½-1.

But the pet owners were not impressed. They formed a pet association and hired a lawyer, Emmett F. Nanna Jr.

Nanna said he knew just how they felt: He has a dog named Charles E. Wilson. And he and Charles vowed to fight.

Nanna said he named Charles for Secretary of Defense Wilson after the secretary made his famed remark about preferring dogs which don't sit on their tails and do nothing.

"I'd like somebody to try and tell me I couldn't keep Charles in my home," said Nanna.

"If you give a board of directors their head in something like this, what's to stop them voting to ban mothers-in-law or something like that?"

French Finance Minister Awaits Results of New Monetary Policy

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

PARIS (UP)—French Finance Minister Felix Gaillard set the wheels in motion by unofficially devaluing the franc. Now he is waiting to see which way they will turn.

The young financial wizard hopes this devaluation and a new "austerity" program will return the nation from the brink of bankruptcy.

But most experts—and many Frenchmen — believe the 37-year-old Gaillard's devaluation was just a starter, a prelude to a new wage and price spiral this fall and a general devaluation of the French currency at home and abroad.

France's economic problems come in the midst of its most prosperous postwar period. Industrial production has increased 47 per cent during the past four years. Steel production is up 62 per cent over 1950. The nation is producing 58 per cent more iron ore each year. It has 75 per cent more electric power and produces 27 per cent more food and farm products each year.

And France is buying more, too.

Wait For Cars

With full employment—only 75,000 persons applied for jobs in May out of a population of 43 million—Frenchmen just wait six months to two years for new cars. They are buying television sets as fast as they come off the production lines.

It is this very boom at home which is causing France's economic problems. It ist he simple fact that France is importing more than it is exporting. Its currency reserves are all but exhausted and its credit is gone.

At present all that stands between France and bankruptcy is 200 billion francs (420 million dollars) in bank of France gold. This is melting away at the rate of 50 billion francs (120 million dollars) a month.

One trouble is the Algerian war, now costing about one billion francs (2.8 million dollars) a day.

American Aid Declining

Another reason France no longer can keep up with its international trade deficit is the gradual cutting off of American foreign aid funds.

U. S. aid, which ran at about 700 million dollars a year during the Indo-China war dropped off to about 125 million dollars this year.

Thus Finace Minister Gaillard faced an almost impossible situation when he began his program of "austerity."

He had to bring France's trade balance into line and he had to do it without cutting imports.

Gaillard's first move was to cut the 1957 budget. It has a projected deficit of four billion dollars. By threatening to quit, Galliard obtained a $1,700,000,000 dollar reduction in the budget, meaning less money for Frenchmen to spend at home.

Then he went after the problem of increasing exports. To do that he had to "unofficially" devalue the franc, from 350 to the dollar to 420 to the dollar.

Devaluation Unofficial

His devaluation was unofficial in that France still pretends the franc is 350 to the dollar. Technically all he did was slap a 20 per cent tax on imports (except raw materials) and granta 20 per cent subsidy to imports (including tourist dollars).

It was the first devaluation of the long - suffering franc since 1949 and brought the franc to the rising black market level.

The move will affect Frenchmen, but will mean little to Americans and other foreigners, to the tourists, businessmen and buyers of French champagne, cars and perfume.

Gaillard hopes the new devaluation will bring more money from the five-million foreign tourists who come to France each year into banks and thus into French foreign exchange reserves.
